MEA drops suit against Town

WILMINGTON - The suit filed against the Town of Wilmington's Board of Appeals and several other Wilmington officials by Massachusetts Environmental Associates (MEA) has been dropped.

MEA, the firm contracted by the landowner to conduct the closure of the Maple Meadow Landfill with contaminated fill from the Big Dig and other construction projects throughout eastern Massachusetts, was contesting the assertion of Wilmington's Building Inspector that the height of the landfill stood in violation of the town's bylaws.

Yesterday, MEA signed a "stipulation of dismissal with prejudice" which dismisses the case against the Town and also

Wilmington's Traffic Supervisors

2005 marks the 50th anniversary of initial appointments

By LARZ F. NEILSON

WILMINGTON - "To us, it was a trust and an obligation," said Maryann Langone, who for 24 years was a Special Police Officer and Traffic Supervisor in Wilmington. "And the reward to us was not all measured in the money, because we didn't make much."

Wilmington's first traffic supervisors were appointed in 1955. The original appointees were Yvonne Allen, Alice Berry, Maryann Langone, Gerri Mutchler and Laura Sheehan.

To the casual observer, they were crossing guards, on duty as children went to school and returned home. In reality, though, their appointment was a giant step, both in police history and in the role of women. The women were granted full police powers, but did not carry guns.

They also served in many other roles, taking on additional tasks such as matron duty when a female prisoner was at the police station, court duty, sitting with passengers en route to the state mental hospital, directing traffic at construction sites, working as store detectives, serving at elections and town meetings, at football games and dances.

They took instruction from the Registry of Motor Vehicles

Historic Comission invites public to participate in saving...

Butters Farm

By STEPHEN BJORK

WILMINGTON - On Monday, June 13, the Historical Commission will devote the bulk of its regularly scheduled meeting to the development of strategies for saving Butters Farm. Historical Commission Chairman Carolyn Harris has been contacted by a number of people from neighboring communities interested in helping with the cause and she expects many of them to attend. She hopes that anyone and everyone with an interest in the fate of Butters Farm will make it out to participate in the exchange of ideas.

The land on which the 300-plus year old home stands, along with five adjacent lots, are slated for development and the house itself is scheduled to be demolished.

Making the house 'Shine'

State funded CDBG funds continue to benefit Wilmington residents

By STEPHEN BJORK

WILMINGTON - Kyle Ventre is not sure what is going on in his grandparents' house.

"The men broke the kitchen," the 2-year old Ventre told his grandfather Michael Shine.

"I think he just wanted to make sure that I didn't think he did it," Shine says with a laugh.

In point of fact, the "men" didn't break the kitchen. They are re-doing the kitchen at no cost to the Shine family.

Michael and Carolyn Shine are just the latest Wilmington residents to benefit from the Massachusetts Community Development Block Grant (CDBG).

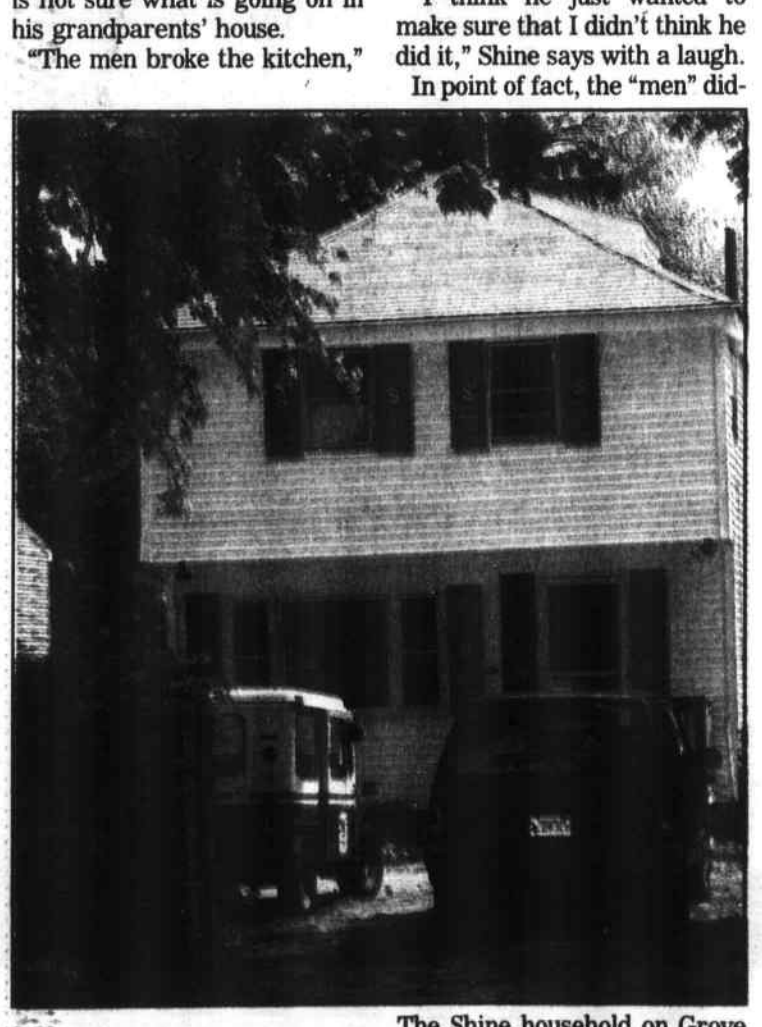

Work being done on the Shine's Grove Avenue home includes new replacement windows, new exterior doors, a new kitchen, a new forced hot-air system, exterior landings in the front and back, extensive rewiring and a new bulkhead. Such a workload is fairly typical for CDBG rehabbed homes, according to Wilmington Director of Planning, Carole Hamilton.

"Our first priority is to bring the home up to code and to make it safe to live in," Hamilton said. "That's why we deal so much with plumbing, electrical, and structural issues."

The first thing inspectors look for, on any house built before 1978, is lead paint. Any windows containing lead paint are replaced. Peeling lead paint on a house exterior is re-painted.

Wiring throughout the Shine house was brought up to current code and hard-wired smoke detectors were installed. The Shine home did have some structural problems, located directly underneath the kitchen, which were repaired, in part, by installing several steel columns in the basement. The kitchen received a new vinyl floor, 12 linear-feet of base cabinets, 8 linear-feet of wall

Wadee; as unique as each child

By STEPHEN BJORK

WILMINGTON - After 12 years as a high-tech marketing executive, Wilmington's Kristina O'Connell decided to change gears. Her primary goal was to be at home with her children, and to that end Wadee was born. Today, sales are booming and O'Connell is a "happy mother of two."

"I'm enjoying this more than I ever thought possible and I've become a valued resource for my customers," O'Connell said.

Wadee (pronounced Wah-Dee) offers products as unique as is each child, including handmade toys, clothing, accessories, and furniture for infants and toddlers up to 6-years old. You won't find any brand names or mass-produced toys in the Wadee inventory. Virtually every item offered is handcrafted by artisans from all around the world.

O'Connell had cultivated relationships with more than 40 vendors during her high-tech days when both foreign and domestic travel was an all too regular part of her life. She's combed boutique shops and art fairs across the globe so that

Last year the Minutemen disposed of nearly 1000 flags.

Interested individuals may attend the ceremony which will begin at 6:00 p.m.

It's Your Money
by Joyce Brisbois

GIFT GIVING

Some people make large financial gifts to move money out of their estates. Some just want to help out family members. Either way, the rules are pretty much the same.

You can give $11,000 a year to anyone, free of gift taxes. A married couple, filing together can give $22,000. Make a gift to a young couple trying to scrape up a down payment, and you can make the gift for $44,000! You can give up to $1 million over that over your lifetime, but it will cut into your future estate tax exemption.

There's more: there's no limit to what you can pay to a medical or educational institution to cover the costs of another person. If you can afford it, you can send your grandchildren to college—all free of gift taxes!

Sometimes it's worthwhile to move assets—and pay the gift tax—assuming that later appreciation will increase their value even more.

Let us help you structure your gift-giving to avoid unnecessary taxes. We've got the know-how you need at.

OPINION

From the Editor's Desk

By Stephen P. Bjork

The other side

There are two sides to every story. Last week's editorial criticized the Wilmington Police Department for failing to march in the Memorial Day parade and cited a lack of compensation as the primary reason behind the department's absence. On that count, I now believe that I was mistaken.

Last Wednesday morning, our production day, a veteran of the Korean War visited the Town Crier and angrily related his displeasure with the police force. The department failed to march in the parade, according to him, because they would not be compensated for it. He further asserted that the Fire Department did not get paid, but chose to march anyway. Later that morning, incidentally, a Veteran of the War on Terror visited the office for the exact same reason.

I made two phone calls, one to the Town Manager and one to the Chief of Police. I asked each of them if, in previous years, the police had ever been paid or compensated to march in the Memorial Day Parade. Each of them answered that they had. I also asked if members of the department would, or would not be compensated for marching in this year's parade. The Town Manager stated that he had advised the department that no funding would be available to compensate for participation in this year's parade.

That constitutes the extent of my conversations with either of the two men. In my conversation with Chief Spencer, I did attempt to speculate on a motive for the department's lack of presence, but he refused to take part in such a discussion and stated only that two members of the force did participate.

I take the time now of detailing those conversations for two reasons - bear with me. Firstly; on Thursday I received a letter-to-the-editor from Officer Paul Chalifour (printed elsewhere on this page) questioning the legitimacy of my source of information. No mystery was intended, so I made a courtesy call to Mr. Chalifour and described my phone calls exactly as detailed above. He thanked me and we ended the call amicably. Sometime later, statements were attributed to me that were never uttered by me. Neither the Town Manager, nor the Chief of Police ever opined to me that the department did not march because it would not be compensated. Furthermore, I never claimed otherwise to anyone.

Secondly; the editorial was an opinion based on the factual data obtained. My mistake, pointed out accurately by Mr. Chalifour during one of our conversations, was in presenting the editorial as a point of fact and not as an opinion. To quote, the editorial stated, "They (Police) didn't march because they were not going to be paid to march."

That should not have been offered as a categorical statement and for that I offer a sincere apology to the Wilmington Police.

I have spoken to a number of people in the department over the last week and I have come to believe that compensation was not a motivating factor within the department.

With all that having been said, however, a perception of the police's conspicuous absence from the Memorial Day ceremonies was formed among a significant number of residents days before I ever picked up a pencil to write about it. Last week's editorial certainly propagated the perception, but it did not create it.

I understand that there were many legitimate reasons for various members of the department not to have been able to attend. I further understand that no one on the department is, nor should any of them be, duty bound to attend. A parade is not everyone's preferred method for honoring the fallen soldiers on Memorial Day.

It was, however, the first time in the last ten years or so, to the best of my knowledge, that police did not march in the Memorial Day parade. A number of parade participants felt slighted as a result. It was an event worthy of commenting on, and I retain my right and my duty as editor to do so. I'm a big boy and, when I believe myself to be right, have no problem sticking to my guns despite any measure of pushback. But I am also a big enough person to acknowledge when I've stepped over the line. I regret that I did indeed step over it last week.

For now, I respectfully turn the floor over the Wilmington Police Department for their response.

Letters to the editor

Editorial needlessly vilified members of the Wilmington Police Department

Dear Editor,

We the undersigned members of the Wilmington Police Department wish to take this opportunity to express our dismay at your decision to publish your recent editorial Cops see green...Vets see red. An editorial, which states as fact, that: "They didn't march because they were not going to be paid to march". You must have known that such a volatile statement would spark an emotional response from veterans, their family members and the public in general. Additionally, you should have known that a similar response would have been forthcoming from the members of the Wilmington Police Department. As such, your careless reliance on self-serving and unreliable sources has generated many false assumptions about members of the Wilmington Police Department. To this end, the very people they have dedicated themselves to serve are now holding Wilmington Police Officers in contempt.

The following are some facts regarding the Wilmington Police Department and its Honor Guard that you should have sought out and reviewed prior to portraying such dedicated members as greedy and selfish.

During the past ten years the Wilmington Police Honor Guard has participated in numerous parades, dedications, funerals, promotional ceremonies, and memorial services. In each instance it had been understood, with the approval of police management, that members would not receive pay but would rather be compensated with time off commensurate with the number of hours spent at each particular ceremony. At no time has the Wilmington Police Honor Guard ever demanded pay as a condition of marching or participating in any event.

This all changed on Memorial Day 2004. In the weeks leading up to this event the newly promoted Chief of Police actively solicited all members of the police department to "volunteer" their time to march in the parade. Not only did the Honor Guard plan to attend and lead the parade, but for the first time in many years the rank and file of regular officers would march also. Each and every participant eagerly volunteered for the privilege of marching in such an event. In the end, the police contingent featured the Honor Guard with one bagpiper, three flag bearers, two riflemen, and a commanding officer. Additionally, nearly twenty regular officers followed close behind. All officers then took part in the observances at the Wildwood Cemetery Veterans Lot. In what is assumed was a show of his appreciation for a job well done, the Chief offered each participant the option of receiving four hours pay or eight hours time off. The Chief made this offer after the parade and ceremonies had concluded and officers had returned to the police station. At no time did any officer solicit pay or time off for marching in the parade. At no time did any officer believe he would be compensated for marching in the parade. At no time did any officer refuse to march because pay was not offered. There was not then, nor is there now, any expectation that police officers will be paid for taking part in such an event.

One of the reasons a good journalist like you checks sources is to prevent the press from being manipulated for political and self-serving purposes by special interest groups or individuals. Unequivocally, the reason why police officers did not march this year has got nothing to do with pay!! The police department has a long history of supporting veterans. Its membership has included veterans of nearly every major conflict of the twentieth century. Furthermore, peacetime soldiers, sailors, and airmen have always been featured prominently amongst our ranks and continue to be so included. In addition to always holding those who have died in the service of their country with the deepest respect and admiration Wilmington Police Officers and their fraternal organizations have continually supported past and current members of the U.S. Armed Services. Over the past few years individual officers and the police union have donated hundreds of dollars worth of care packages to troops serving in Iraq and Afghanistan. More recently, the police union sponsored and hosted the Veterans Day Breakfast on November 11, 2004. These are just a few examples of the police department's continued dedication to our nation's military.

Your sources certainly did not offer what has just been related to you. Had they, you certainly would have included it or maybe you wouldn't have written the article at all.

To that end, your decision to hastily print such misinformation has only served to inflame the emotions of many people while needlessly vilifying members of the police department.

Editorial offered inaccurate portrayal of officers

Dear Editor,

Being a Wilmington Police Officer and serving four years active duty in the U.S. Coast Guard, along with the fact that my father served in the Army Infantry and fought in the Pacific during WWII, I had to respond to your "Cops See Green...Vets See Red" editorial.

Although I am not in the Honor Guard, I feel that I need to clarify some of what you stated in the editorial. "They didn't march because they were not paid to march." This is simply not true. Although I have not spoken to all the officers since your editorial was printed, I have spoken to many of them. Those that I did speak with had different reasons for not marching, which did not include the reason of not being paid. You also state in your editorial that two "officers participated in the Memorial Day activities on a volunteer basis. It is too bad more of their brethren chose not to." It is my understanding that Officer Moon was paid for his regular shift that day, so when you stated that he volunteered for the activities, I will assume you meant that he volunteered his participation in the parade and not his time, like Lt. Neville did.

Last year, my regular shift fell on Memorial Day and I marched. Although I did not consider it volunteering. I point this out to ensure that the right person gets credit, but it is not my intention to discredit Officer Moon, for he has volunteered his time in the past and will probably do so again in the future. I believe that you saw him participating in the parade and assumed what you should not have, instead of asking him.

Over the years, I have participated in many Memorial Day parades in some way or another and on those days that I was in uniform, it was either because it was my regular shift to work or I volunteered. I have never been paid overtime. This year I chose to take the day off and go to my brother's family cookout in Westfield, MA, which I feel I have the right to do, thanks to my father and other veterans like him.

Over the years I have volunteered my time on many occasions, along with all but the newest officers, and find it disheartening that you wrote last week's editorial portraying my brethren as greedy when I personally know otherwise.

Over the years that you have been writing for the paper, I believe that you have been fair in your articles. Since we are all human and make mistakes once in a while, I will consider this one of them.

Sincerely,
Charles R. Fiore, Jr.

Offended by editorial

Dear Editor,

This is an open letter to the editor and the people of Wilmington. I was disappointed and somewhat offended by your article "Cops see green... Vets see red" in the June 1, 2005 edition of the Wilmington Town Crier. I am disappointed because it appears that your source, unlike the recently revealed W. Mark Felt, was completely unreliable, self-serving and propagandist. The reasons (plural) for the Police Honor Guard's absence and the rank and file for that matter has got nothing to do with pay. Had you chosen to gather accurate information from trustworthy sources you would have discovered this. Instead you appear to have been played like Dan Rather. However, I am even more greatly offended because you have taken it upon yourself to decide how I honor this nation's war dead. My life's one and only regret is that I did not follow my father and grandfather's footsteps and enter military service. I have always been proud to say that when World War II began my grandfather left his job and family to join the U.S. Navy. I have been equally proud to say that when the Korean War began my father and his brother joined the U.S. Navy and sailed around the globe as two youngsters barely out of their teens. I cannot imagine, especially in a time of war, not honoring and paying tribute to who have died in service to our country. If you had asked instead of just assumed, you would have found out that I attended the parade with my father something that I was honored to do and would not have traded for anything, especially pay. As bagpiper for the police honor guard, I marched the Memorial Day parade in 2003 and 2004 and I was privileged to have done so. This year I chose to spend time with my father. If you desire the truth as to why police officers did not march, just ask the Chief of Police or the Town Manager I'm sure they won't tell you. In advance, I will accept your apology to my father and me for spending time together and paying tribute in our own way.

Sincerely,
Paul L. Chalifour

June 11 Benefit concert for Maycie Moreno

Maycie Moreno, 4-years old, suffers from a condition known as Hemangioma. In Maycie's case, the condition developed just one month after her birth in the form of a small red mark on her upper lip. It eventually became an entanglement of blood vessels, pumping blood through a large mass.

This condition requires corrective surgery and the procedures are extremely costly.

Due to insurance challenges, Maycie's family is in desperate need of financial assistance. In an effort to help defray Maycie's medical costs a benefit event has been scheduled for June 11, and will be held at the Billerica Elks located at 14 Webb Brook Road in Billerica.

The bands Super Sternal Notch (with former members of the Boston/Wilmington based Whoopie Cat), Broken Society, and Rock 'N Rebels will appear courtesy of Platinum Plus Universal Records.

Super Sternal Notch includes lead singer Donald Sullivan of Wilmington. Sullivan was a 1988 graduate of Wilmington High School where he lettered in football and wrestling. He now resides in Arizona.

Comedian Marty Laquidara, formerly of Wilmington and now residing in California will host the benefit.

"Many thanks to all the bands and everyone for helping my beautiful little girl look and feel better about herself," said Scott Moreno, a member of Super Sternal Notch.

All proceeds will go toward Maycie's medical costs. Donations are gratefully accepted and greatly appreciated.

Over eight years ago, shortly after my husband and I found out we were expecting our first child, we were helping a newlywed couple move into their first home. With us were other young couples, all venturing upon a new period in our lives.

Someone said something that has stuck with me through all these years. At the time it sounded a little corny, but I will never forget it: "These are good times," she said. And they were.

There are periods during our lives where everything changes. It seems we leave our previous life, and move onto the next phase. It's a completely new endeavor and everything is different. We transition from one life to another, while still holding onto the past.

It's exciting to look into the future, to wonder what is around the corner.

As a child, the summers were endless, and the school year even longer. It seemed as if life stood still, and time didn't move forward.

Milestone's that couldn't wait to be reached have long gone by. I realize the wisdom in generations before, and understand the longing in eyes for years that have quickly slipped by.

For this reason, I am glad for the calendar that fills up a month before, and running from one end of town to the other for activities. Baseball games, dance recitals, and school programs. They are all, "good times."

I think of the parents who sit at a high school graduation, remembering the past eighteen years, and know that I too will be sitting there some day very soon. I would like to believe that I can control many things, but time is not one of them.

As the end of the school year fast approaches, I consider what has gone into making it another successful year. These are the people that have created memories for the children, and given us, as parents, "good times" to remember.

Teachers, parents, coaches, volunteers. They are all instrumental. If not for these people, the last ten months may not have meant so much.

The teachers who have helped our children reach milestones in their lives.

The parents who ensure their children are where they need to be, and have what they need to succeed.

The coaches, like teachers, who encourage the children to reach their goals.

And the volunteers, who help in every aspect, from organizing fundraisers, to helping on the field.

There are memories being created at every stage in our lives. We are all venturing upon new periods in our lives. They may not seem it at the time, but stop, and remember, these are, "good times."

Do Women Really Understand Men?

Do women really know how men feel about love and sex? Women may understand their own feelings and needs, but they usually don't understand men. The sexual intensity felt by men makes sincerity, commitment, and honesty a confusing task. The constant drive for sexual gratification disrupts good intent. Every waking hour, most young men are in a state of sexual readiness. This causes men to misinterpret women's innocent friendly gestures. The slightest encouragement causes men to seek and hope for sexual intimacy. Women are very different from men. Women send out vibes that project, a wish to be wanted, but often it's not sexual. Their need is to be accepted and meaningful to the man. Women can enjoy closeness without thinking about having sex. Too often men and women start off on different wavelengths. Some women are fortunate in knowing how men think and feel. Young girls learn through heart breaking trial and error.

Most relationships require a lot of soul searching and coping with new situations to sort things out. If you want a meaningful relationship you must get beyond sex. Do you have something in common to share during the many hours of abstinence? Are your interests and goals compatible? Will you be there for each other when the going gets rough? Do you understand and accept your partner's weaknesses? Couples need to know how they feel about each other before the ultimate sex act. To give your all to someone you don't know makes love insignificant. You could be losing more than you gain. Women's fantasies of love and closeness will not be realized by sex alone.

To be knowledgeable is to choose properly. Does the man care about you other than for sex? Do you realize that some men will overlook a lack of intelligence, character, or soul to fulfill their sexual desires? Even dislike for the women doesn't deter some men from having sex with them. Would you be satisfied if the man's only acceptance of you is sexual? Are you a person of importance to him? Are you just a sex object for this man? Do you want to be loved after the loving? If so, the vehicle of sex alone will never do it.

There are so many unanswered questions about sex. If you want to know a man's true beliefs, ask him what he expects of his wife, daughter, and mother. Clean, wholesome, and respectful become the key words. Men know what is proper when it comes to their loved ones. Women also know the truth when asked how their daughters should sexually behave. Many mothers expect a better morality from their children than from themselves.

Sexual confusion is not helped by the many women of today who project sexuality as a way of attracting men. The focus of getting a man has changed from neat, clean, and wholesome to sex, sex and more sex. Women's words, action, and provocative appearance are meant to entice and win over the man. This is a poor way to find love. Because of today's media many young women know no other way. Their hearts and souls are ready for love, but the proper means to find it is missing. Men could help women's confusion by being more truthful about how they feel about sex.

Is it any wonder women are confused by the actions of men? Man's sexual drive can overshadow logic, goodness, and better judgment. In the past, chaperoning, keeping a safe distance between the sexes, and covering the woman's body helped to defuse man's sexual drive. Today there are no safe guards. Men have an impossible task of not lusting over women. Women's freedom to entice men and expose their bodies has opened the gates to a sexual revolution.

There are many women who long for traditional courtship; getting to know a man, falling in love, and then becoming intimate. Some feel forced to join the new amorality to be popular. The waiting, building respect, and the slow transition to love are vanishing. The new trend is to start off with the ultimate sexual encounter. This can take away the closeness of a relationship. When you start at the top, you can go down hill. That beautiful climb to the top may never be realized. The man who cares would want to experience this travel.

There is no one answer to love and sex. People's needs and expectations are different. However, we all need to know the truth to choose properly. This responsibility belongs mostly to parents. Teach your boys to respect girls. Teach your daughters proper conversation, dress, and dating behavior. Every child wants respect and acceptance; parents must show them the way. Your time and effort are a must. It will not happen on its own. We must take back our children from a culture that disregards decency and morality. Give back the youth and innocence they once enjoyed. This will help develop a foundation of love and respect for their future with a partner.

Reading, studying, and communicating are all seeded in our libraries

Dear Editor,

I was reading the Saturday Boston Globe June 4, 2005 and there was an Opinion article by Anne LaMott "In Steinbeck country, we said no to closing the libraries."

I agree there is no similarity to Steinbeck country "closing the libraries" and Wilmington's "building a library" but the thoughts in the article just rang so true and express my deeply felt beliefs, I simply needed to write.

Here are the thoughts expressed in the article:

". . . the buildings that hold the town's books, all those bound stories about people and wisdom and justice and life and silliness and laborers bending low to pick the strawberries. . . "

"A free public library is a revolutionary notion, and when people don't have free access to books, then communities are like radios without batteries. The entire flow of communication is bricked off. You cut people off from incredible sources of information - mythical, practical, linguistic, or political - and you break them. . . ."

". . . they've always known that the only thing that keeps a democracy functioning is for its citizens to stay educated. If you don't have a place where the poor, marginalized, and young can find out who they are, then they have no hope of maintaining a free and civilized society."

"We were there to celebrate intelligence capabilities that our country can actually be proud of - those of librarians. But those of us gathered that day see them as healers and magicians. They can tease out of an often inarticulate person enough information about what he or she is after, and then lead him or her on the path of connection. They're trailed guides through the forest of shelves and aisles - you turn a person loose who has limited skills, and they are going to get walloped by the branches. But librarians match up readers with the right books: "Hey, is this one too complicated? Then why don't you give this one a try?"

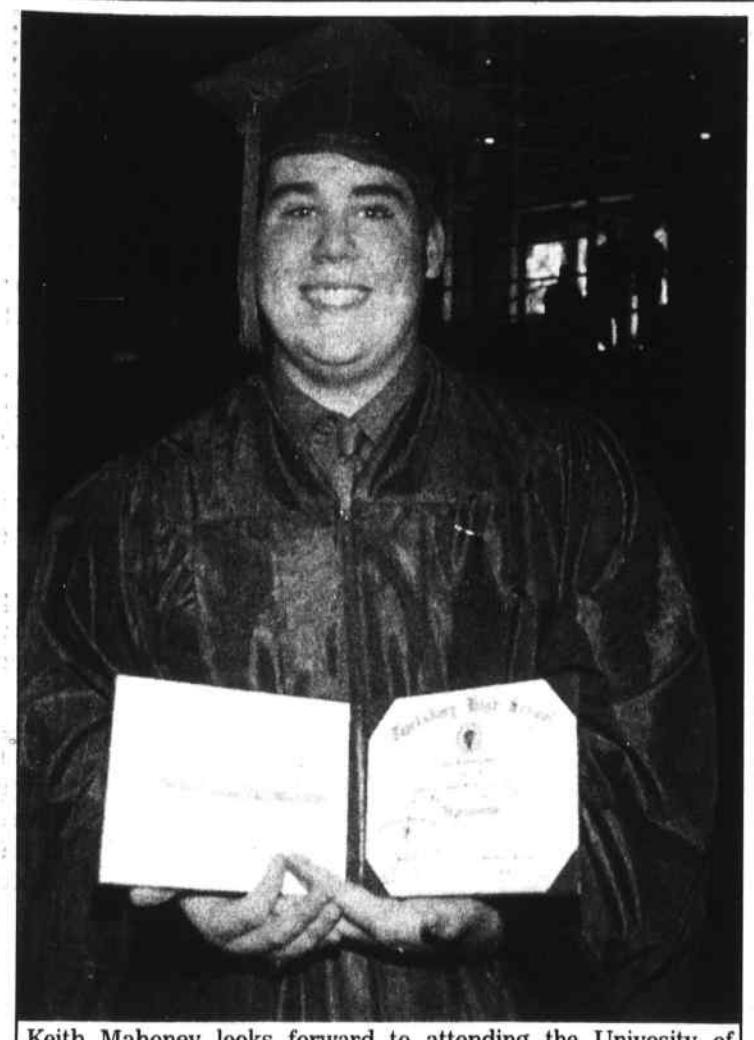

"The after-school literacy and homework programs are two of the few safe places to which parents can direct their children, away from the gangs."

". . . Sometimes a person needs a story more than food."

"Reading and books are medicine. Stories are written and told by and for people who have been broken, but who have risen up, or will, if attention is paid. Those people are you and us. Stories and truth are splints for the soul, and that makes today a sacred gathering. Now, we were all saying: Pass it on."

Wow! I couldn't have said it better myself. I hope the Editors can reprint the article. These are the lessons I learned in the 50's. Reading, studying, communicating, all are seeded by our libraries.

Sincerely,
Ann L. Yurek

Tewksbury Board of Health to establish Substance Abuse Committee

TEWKSBURY - The Tewksbury Board of Health has announced that it is forming a Substance Abuse Committee that will act as a subcommittee to the Board of Health. The Board has established this committee in response to goals that it has set for this coming year, as well as the current public health issue of substance abuse within the community.

Residents may remember the establishment of a similar committee in the 1980's and 1990's, with representatives from several community groups organizing to combat this community problem. It is the hope of the Board that the community will mobilize to again join forces.

The committee will be charged with developing a community plan to address substance abuse within Tewksbury. It is hoped that education and support programs can be identified and expanded to better serve the town, and volunteers and funding will be sought out. The Board members feel that even if one person is helped through these efforts, that it will be successful.

To that end, the Board has set a meeting date of June 23, 2005 from 7:00 PM to 9:00 PM in the Library. Anyone interested in being an active member of this important, groundbreaking group is invited to attend. If you can not attend but are interested in being a part of this, you may contact Board of Health Chairman Phil French at 978-604-1708, or email Director of Public Health Thomas G. Carbone at tcarbone@town.tewksbury.ma.us

Robert Crowe receives Grace and Bill Peabody award

WILMINGTON - Bill Peabody, Director of the Grace and Bill Peabody Foundation, formally recognized the winner of this year's college scholarship award at Wilmington High Class Night, June 3. The winner is Robert M. Crowe, Jr. whose mother Doreen Crowe is a Nurse Leader in the Wilmington Schools. He will attend University of Lowell in the fall. Peabody was be assisted in the award by Katelyn Thomas, current Foundation awardee (UNH Class of 2006) and 2002 Wilmington High School graduate.

The Grace and Bill Peabody Foundation was founded in May of 2000 to honor Grace Peabody (deceased), who was for many years a secretary in the Lexington Superintendant's Office, and Bill Peabody (retired), for 33 years a Social Studies teacher in the Wilmington School System. The foundation was conceived and funded by Mr. Peabody's two sons, Bo and Mark, as a way to honor their father on his retirement from teaching. The foundation seeks to recognize the efforts of Wilmington teachers and school staff by enabling a son or daughter to attend a college of their choice and by providing motivation to students to complete their four-year degree.

The foundation makes an award in December of each year, to a high school senior, for up to $5,000 each year for the Sophomore, Junior and Senior years in college as long as the student stays in school and maintains at least a 2.8 GPA overall. High school seniors who are children of the staff of the Wilmington Public School System may apply, applications due Oct. 31 of each year. Applications may be obtained in August from the Wilmington Public School office or from the foundation.

As their flags went up – ours came down

By Yoni Freeman"

"As the call, so the echo"
-Vietnamese Proverb

It was like the 4th of July - without the American flag and barbecues. Flags and more flags were placed all around the capital of Hanoi (not that there haven't been any flags in the first place). New, bigger banners and posters adorned major intersections and causeways -engrossed with government slogans, the hammer and sickle and the peaceful dove. Ho Chi Minh's smiling and waving posture greeted onlookers in a renewed fashion.There were a handful of dates remembered during the end of April and early May- you had Ho Chi Minh's Birthday, the Birthday of Hanoi, the Conquering of Saigon by the North Vietnamese, Victory at Dien Bien Phu against the French, International Workers Day, and the annual Tourism Week. While the streets of Hanoi were covered in red and yellow, Hoan Kim Lake experienced its own festival - Tourism Week. A range of booths all around the lake made their presence, each offering goods and services. Surprisingly, they were catering to ordinary Vietnamese and not tourists, with everything from food to hats, and tour offerings. There were also stages with all kinds of music being played, and the large crowds walked around to enjoy the festivities. Another major event was the "Conquering of Saigon" day, which occurred on April 30. Unpredictably, there was not much activity here in Hanoi on that notable day. A friend and I traveled to Ba Ding Square (the main square housing Ho Chi Minh's mausoleum) for the purpose of paying Ho Chi Minh another visit, and also to check out whether any festivities were being held. To our dismay there were none. I later learned the main event was being held in Ho Chi Minh City (aka Saigon), and the government focused its attention there with parades and the national ceremony. On Ho Chi Minh's birthday loud speakers all around his mausoleum played music, even at night. On that day I went with friends to a music concert organized by the Russian Dept. at the Foreign Language University. Songs were sung in Vietnamese and Russian, and Russian students performed as well. The newspapers were likewise draped in his image. Finally, International Workers day was celebrated with ceremonies commemorating the achievements of the "workers paradise". In addition, vacation days were given to state workers. Programming on TV was a mixture of socialist realist themes and of course topics concerning Ho Chi Minh. There were movies about the Vietnamese and their wars of independence, and also student choral groups singing nationalist songs. One of the events featured a student holding up high Ho Chi Minh's portrait, while students were latched on by holding strings all around it, and chanting. The images being shown portrayed a type of society Viet Nam was moving away from, at least in its economic side. During another weekend I was invited to go to a talent show the University of Architecture was having. It was a little different from what I expected. For one, it was all singing. In addition, the judges, as I was told, were all Communist Party officials. They started off with slogans being shouted off in support of the Communist Party. Then singers came on and different songs were sung. All, and I mean all, the songs dealt with exalting Viet Nam, the Communist Party, Ho Chi Minh, the revolution, and the conquering of Saigon. The only non-political song was about flowers. But, don't get me wrong, they were very good singers and it was an interesting experience. These college aged students also did something worth noting: during and following the singing, students, friends, lovers or simply persons wanting to show affection, brought flowers to the female or male singers. The color of the flower signified their message - red for love, yellow or white for friendship or congratulation. As much as Hanoi has become much more interesting (and much hotter for that matter) then previously our group has had to finish its "tour" the first week of May. SATA Viet Nam has packed its bags and headed back home. Since arriving January 12, we have stayed put and got accustomed to life here successfully. We have gone on countless field trips all around the country, as well as being engaged in a regular study course. I personally have had lots of fun here with the group and really was able to get a feel for Hanoi. I did not return to the United States even as SATA brought down its flag. I raised my own. No, I am not marrying a Vietnamese girl nor being inducted into the Communist Party. I simply decided it was tooearly to leave, and made plans to stay longer - for the whole summer - working at a Hanoi internship. It may seem strange to you, but I have learned to love living here and therefore worked to extend my stay. I have made a sufficient amount of contacts with Vietnamese students, so hopefully I will not be bored, and will have time to meet new people, travel around, and also improve my Vietnamese.

Coakley named "Fraud Fighter of the Year."

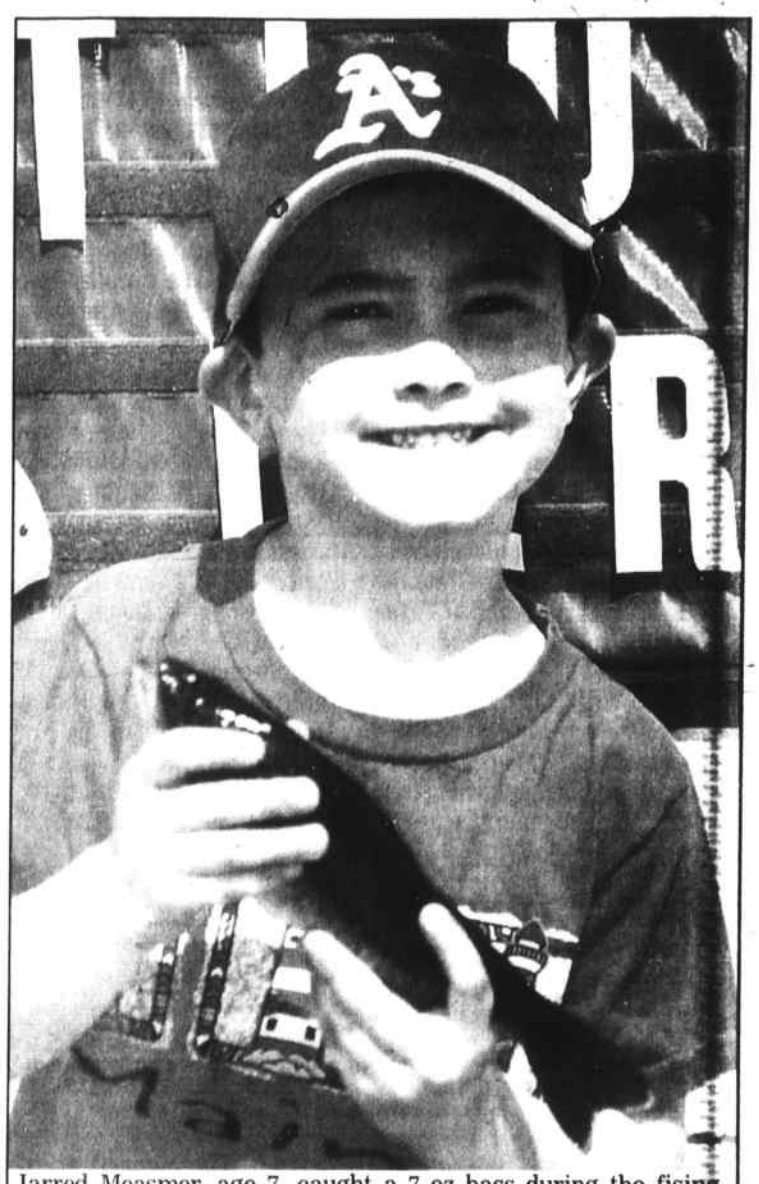

BOSTON - Middlesex District Attorney Martha Coakley was awarded 'Fraud Fighter of the Year' by the Association of Certified Fraud Examiners (ACFE), Greater Boston Chapter. The award was given as a part of the ACFE Boston Chapter Annual Meeting.

"While we may not see it in the headlines or on the television news, white collar crime is a major concern, not only in Massachusetts, but across the nation," said District Attorney Coakley. "Such crimes can debilitate businesses, particularly small, local businesses, which are vital to our economy. Cases of fraud and other white collar crimes are not easy to prosecute, but we remain committed to holding accountable those who take advantage of businesses and consumers."

The Association of Certified Fraud Examiners (ACFE) is international professional organization dedicated to the detection and deterrence of fraud and white collar crime, and known as the world's premier provider of anti-fraud training and education. A leader in the global anti-fraud community, the ACFE has over 33,000 members, sponsors more than 100 chapters worldwide and provides anti-fraud educational materials to over 100 universities. The Greater Boston Chapter provides monthly training sessions in the field, as well as an annual fullday conference for members.

Middlesex District Attorney Martha Coakley began her legal career in civil litigation with insurance companies dealing with fraud. She first joined the Middlesex District Attorney's Office (MDAO) in 1986, as an Assistant District Attorney in the Lowell District Court office. Shortly thereafter, she joined the Public Protection Unit of the MDAO, under Scott Harshbarger, prosecuting white collar criminals. In 1987, Coakley was invited by the U.S. Justice Department to join its Boston Organized Crime Strike Force as a Special Attorney, where she remained for two years before returning to public service.

The ACFE Boston Chapter Annual Meeting took place May 25, 2005, as a part of the ACFE Boston Chapter Training, entitled "Financial Statement Fraud and Continuous Monitoring." The Meeting was held at the Federal Reserve Bank Building, in Boston, and approximately 80 certified fraud examiners from Massachusetts and Rhode Island were in attendance.

Eight grants awarded by the Wilmington Arts Council

WILMINGTON - The Wilmington Arts Council has announced the recipients of monetary grants from the Massachusetts Cultural Council. Every year the Council goes over each application and decides on which program will be receiving money. We have limited funds to give out. This year we had 20 applicants. The Council tries to spread the money over the many different population groups in Wilmington - the seniors, the school children, the library, theater groups, artists and musicians.

Two passes for the Museum of Fine Arts and the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum available at the library were paid for by the Arts Council.

Two theater groups were also awarded grants - the Delvena Theater Company and the New Repertory Theater. One has already been seen at the Wilmington High School. Two excellent art programs will be presented in town. Richard Hamlin will present a program entitled the Pied Potter's Magical Wheel and Gregory Maichack the Art of Pastels. John Root will present a musical Gas Light Era concert at the library.

The Shawsheen Valley Technical High School will be going to the DeCordova Museum with a little help from the Wilmington Arts Council.

Board of Library Trustees

At their recent reorganization meeting, the members of Tewksbury's Board of Library Trustees elected Joseph Frank to the position of Chairperson for the upcoming year. Mr. Frank is a faculty member at Tewksbury Memorial High School. He is a member of the Tewksbury 9/11 Memorial Committee, serving as a liaison between the trustees and the committee.

Trustee Brenda Orio will serve as the board's vice-chairperson, and Mark O'Connor was elected to the position of board clerk.

Former trustee chairperson Mary MacDonald will serve as the trustees' liaison to the Friends of the Library organization.

Other library trustees include Town Historian Warren Carey and newly elected trustee Paul Manning. Mr. Manning takes the seat previously held by outgoing trustee Janet Sutton.

Mr. Manning is best known in town for his efforts on behalf of Space Day and for his science and history enrichment programs in the public schools.

Among current issues being discussed by the trustees are the expansion of library hours of service to include Sunday afternoons, the proposed implementation of a theft-detection system, and the 9/11 Memorial which will be located on library grounds, funded by private donations.

The first change to the library's operating schedule in more than 25 years, the funding proposal for Sunday hours was included in the library's FY 2006 budget proposal which will be acted upon on Saturday, June 25 when Annual Town Meeting reconvenes. If approved by voters, the additional hours would begin in September 2005 and would run throughout the school year. At their June meeting, the trustees will discuss the results of a survey conducted during the past three months to gauge public opinion on the proposal.

For over one hundred years, the Tewksbury Public Library has been governed by a six-member board of library trustees who are elected to three year terms of office. The trustees are responsible for overseeing the library, establishing long-range plans, proposing an annual budget to town voters and conducting public relations for the library. The library is currently midway through a five-year strategic plan which covers the period 2003-2007.

Local residents are invited to attend the board's meetings. The library trustees meet monthly at the public library. Visit the library's web site, www.tewksburypl.org for information on meeting dates and times.

Butters Farm

The owner of the property is currently in agreement with a local developer, but there is still a chance to preserve the property. Because the land has received tax breaks due to its status as an agricultural property, the Town of Wilmington has the right of first refusal. In other words, the Town has the right to purchase the property if it is able to match the offer of $450,000 currently on the table. The Town is given 120 days to match the offer and the clock started ticking three weeks ago.

"I'm a lady with a very short window of opportunity," Harris said. "I've already told my husband to forget about a summer vacation."

So far, according to Harris, the commission has sent letters seeking support to each of Wilmington's state and national legislators, the Governor of Massachusetts, the Secretary of State, and even to the President of the United States.

"This is bigger than Wilmington, this is part of American history," says Harris. "How many 323-year old homes can there be, not just in Massachusetts, but in the country?"

Not only is the structure more than three hundred years old, but it has also been continuously lived in as a private dwelling.

"The house has seen generation after generation of people who have worked and toiled in Wilmington," Harris said.

Mailings will be sent to business members of the Chamber of Commerce and flyers are being developed to inform property abutters of the situation. A website, which Harris hopes to have linked to the Town's homepage, is also currently in the developmental stages.

Harris is working on compiling a list of every private philanthropic foundation to have shown an interest in historic preservation.

"I don't know where all this will lead, but I'm not above begging, not when something like this is at stake," Harris said. "We are losing our historic landmarks in this country due to development at an alarming rate. I will explore every possible avenue."

Harris is not against progress, but she would like to see a healthy partnering between development and preservation in order to stave off the loss of historic treasures. She feels fortunate that it is Joseph Langone of Northeast Development that is currently in agreement with the property owner.

"Mr. Langone is a man of integrity," Harris said. "He has given a lot to this community, both publicly and privately and he is working with us to find a solution."

Though Langone does not yet own the property, he has participated in several meetings with Harris and the two are striving to find a scenario amenable to all parties. He knows that $450,000 will be a very difficult figure for the Historic Commission to come up with, especially within the short amount of time allotted. With that in mind, he instructed his engineer to re-configure the lots to facilitate all a parcel of land for the Butters house to be moved to.

"We will be going before the Planning Board with a proposal to donate a 12,000 square foot parcel and the building to the Town," Langone said. "I'm not sure what else I could do, short of donating the entire $450,000."

Langone has received a fair amount of criticism for his part in the situation, but if Northeastern Development did not make an offer on the property, another firm would have.

"I come from this town," Langone said. "Someone else probably wouldn't care."

Harris does not begrudge Langone's making a profit.

"Mr. Langone is a businessman and he should not have to lose money on this at all," Harris said. "We need to come up with the funds."

Coming up with the funds to buy the Butters Farm parcel outright would be the ideal situation. Langone's plans would necessitate the moving of the structure, which in itself would present monumental challenges. Part of the house sits on a foundation, but another portion of the house sits directly on dirt. If the house can successfully be moved, the job would carry a substantial price tag.

The Historic Commission meeting will be held on Monday, June 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the Town Museum of the Harnden Tavern.

William Butters of Scotland came over to the New World sometime between 1630 and 1692, but not necessarily by choice. As a prisoner of the infamous Oliver Cromwell, William was sold into the New World as an indentured servant. Once his debt was paid off, he settled in Wilmington.

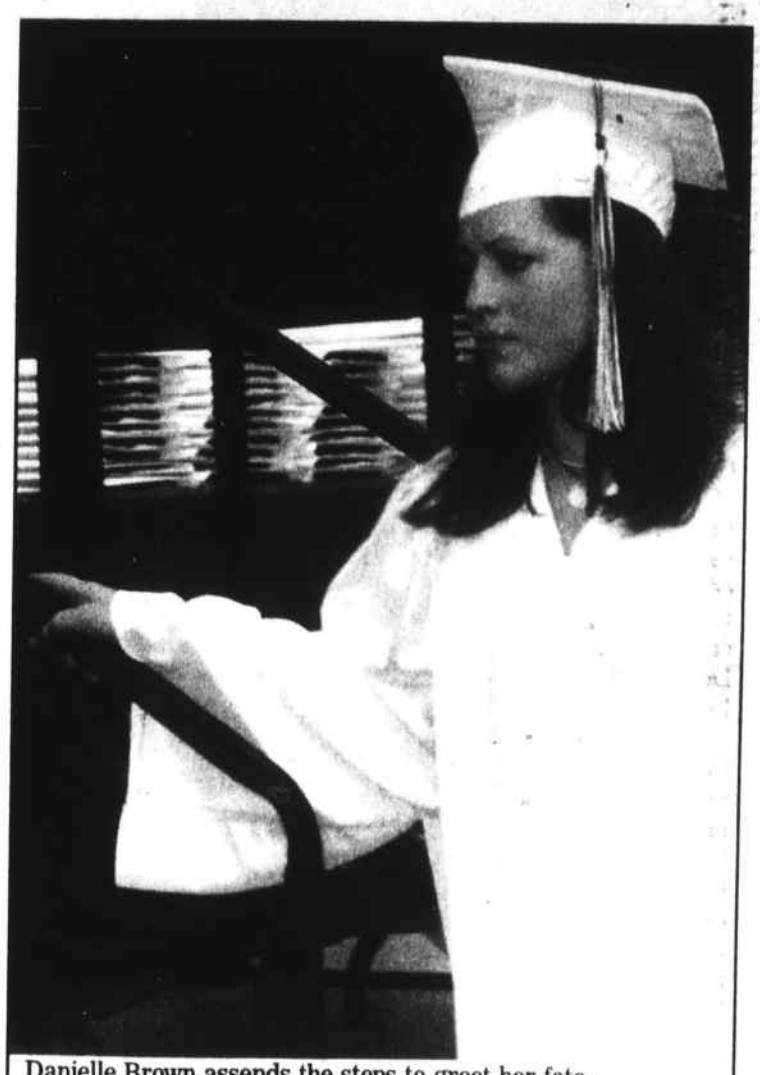

William Butters II, who utilized the property to raise oxen, built the Butters Farm in 1682. He sired ten children and attained some measure of fame by being noted in Ripley's Believe it or Not for trading a team of oxen for a wife. His children subsequently built their own homes throughout the immediate area, which soon became known as "Butters' Row."

William Butters II was elected one of Wilmington's first Selectmen in 1731.

John Butters, grandson to William, Jr., was one of 14 members of the Butters family to fight in the Revolutionary War. Descendents of the first William Butters, as a matter of fact, have served bravely in most of the major wars fought by the United States.

Direct descendents of William Butters still reside in Wilmington, but the Butters' Farm was sold during the early 1960's to the Emery family, who used the property to breed horses.

The Emerys remained in the house until about 2000. Since that time, they have retained ownership and have rented the house out.

Making the house 'Shine'

cabinets, and new laminate countertops; all in accordance with the state's housing standards requirements.

The previously existing kitchen cabinets had deteriorated to the point of creating a safety concern. The Formica countertops were cracked and broken, which allowed food to become trapped and presented a potential health hazard.

This is the house that Mike Shine grew up in and he's thrilled to see the improvements being made. He bought it three years ago and has been on Wilmington's CDBG waiting list for the last two years. His granddaughter, Lacy Ventre seems to know exactly what's going on. According to Shine, she's become the construction foreman.

"She tells the guys whether they are doing a good job and she tries to give them the measurements for the wood," said Shine. At one point, a worker had forgotten a measurement that he had taken, but Lacy didn't forget. "She told him what the measurement was and when he went to check it, she was right on the money," Shine said.

According to Shine, the workers are a good bunch.

"They get here first thing in the morning, and I mean first thing," Shine said. "They move right along. There's always something new done when I get home from work."

There are approximately 50 residents currently on the waiting list for a CDBG improvement, but emergency situations, such as a leaky roof or a failed septic system, for instance, are given priority status.

"In those cases, we provide assistance for the emergency situation only," Hamilton said.

Any remaining issues are addressed when that home makes it to the top of the waiting list.

"People shouldn't be discouraged by a two year waiting period," Hamilton said. "Wilmington has been very successful in obtaining these funds and we plan to continue this program."

Wilmington has been awarded CDBG funds seven times since 1992. The Shine home represents the final project from the FY00 grant. The FY00 grant of $598,840 has rehabilitated 26 Wilmington homes. The town is about to open up its FY04 grant of $794,765 with which it plans to rehab 27 homes.

CDBG funds are used for the rehabilitation of existing homes of families or individuals with low or moderate incomes.

This latest grant has brought the total of such funds received by the Town up over the $4 million mark.

MEA drops suit against Town

prohibits MEA from renewing the lawsuit at anytime in the future.

"MEA appealed the Building Inspector's ruling to the Board of Appeals which upheld the Building Inspector's order," said Wilmington Town Counsel Paul DeRensis. "MEA then filed a lawsuit in Middlesex Superior Court in which MEA contended that the soil bylaw was unconstitutional and was preempted by the DEP orders. MEA also contended that the soil heights were 'temporary stockpiles.'"

According to DeRensis, he and his firm pursued MEA relentlessly for pretrial discovery regarding the amount of money generated at the site and the amount of dirt brought into Wilmington by MEA.

"MEA refused to answer these questions and instead opted to sign the Stipulation of Dismissal," DeRensis said.

Wilmington activists and officials had long believed that far more soil had been imported than was necessary for a proper capping of the landfill and that the site was being exploited as a "revenue dump" for contaminated soil.

DeRensis warns, however, that the Maple Meadow battle is not over. A separate lawsuit brought about by the estate of the deceased owner of the Landfill still remains.

"However, the estate can no longer rely upon the landfill operator MEA to pursue many material allegations, and the town is pressing the estate's owners for more pre trial discovery information from those owners," said DeRensis. "This dismissal is a nice result for the town in its effort to improve the environment in Wilmington and to protect the health and safety of the residents of the town. We thank the members of the Board of Appeals and the Building Inspector for their critical help in bringing about this successful outcome for the town."

Wilmington's Traffic Supervisors

in traffic management, went to rape counseling school and first aid classes.

Before there was a safety officer, Mrs. Langone would go to schools and teach children bus, bicycle, and walking safety. They had a talking car, a great attraction for the kids.

In some cases, they would be called on to sit with a family in which the mother had been arrested. If the FBI arrested someone, the traffic supervisors would be called to stay with the family. In more than one instance, Mrs. Langone intervened with youths in trouble, helping them mature into responsible adults.

The women always marched in local parades, cutting a fine image.

In one instance, Pat Gately dressed up as Santa Claus.

From the original group of five, the squad grew to 20 women, with two on call. The jobs were posted for women between the ages of 25 and 40, preferably with children in the school system. The women all became members of the Massachusetts Police Women's Association.

Mrs. Langone said that for years, she would manage the uniforms, which were passed down as the staff changed.

Mrs. Langone started out directing traffic in Wilmington Square for four years, then at Adams Street for two years. She was then appointed as sergeant, a position she held for 18 years. For the last four years of her career, despite her rank as sergeant, she was subordinate to the safety officer, a patrolman.

The late Chief of Police Paul J. Lynch was especially proud of the traffic supervisors. Ironically, the unit was dissolved shortly after his retirement in 1979.

The town meeting on May 19, 1979 voted down their budget after a lengthy debate. The group had voted to unionize, and had affiliated with a national union. The Finance Committee recommended a zero figure for their budget. Selectman Aldo Caira offered an amended figure of $30,197, which would have been a cut of $8000 from the previous year, but voters turned that down. Ironically, a line item expenditure of $1479 for new uniforms passed. But the women were replaced by contractual crossing guards, and the money for uniforms was never spent.

The traffic supervisors appealed the matter to the state labor board and won nine of ten points raised. But they lost the case on that tenth point. The town meeting had voted no money for them in the budget.

her customers don't have to.

"If you want something really special and unique, you have to visit many different boutique shops," O'Connell said. "That's not always fun and most people don't have the time for it. That's where Wadee comes in. I make it easy for people to find those hard-to-find special items."

The company name, incidentally, was one of the first "words" spoken by O'Connell's daughter, Callie. Loosely translated, it means "the same as."

"I've always wanted to own my own business and I always knew that it would be children-related," O'Connell said. And according to O'Connell, upon her daughter's first utterances, the name of the future enterprise was immediately established.

Wadee itself is now a very healthy toddler. At two-years old, the fledgling company is growing like the proverbial weed. All sales are now done online, but it didn't start out that way. Bringing Wadee into the world included a full year of conducting home parties during the evening hours all over Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

Currently, sales are dominated by corporate clients who often opt for one the Wadee Gift Pails. The items found in the Gift Pails literally spill out of it in a pleasant explosion of colors and textures meant to excite infants and parents alike.

"It's clear that parents appreciate the thoughtfulness and quality of the products as much or more than the child who receives the gift," says O'Connell.

Customers able to choose from different sizes and can request "baby girl", "baby boy", and even "not sure yet." Items found in the pails vary, but may include a handmade reversible bib, burp cloth, toy, toiletries, spoon, lullaby CD, stuffed animal, bookmark, and a finger puppet.

O'Connell has worked hard to establish a strong sense of loyalty and trust with her clients. Many of Wadee' clients have become repeat clients and a growing number of them simply tell O'Connell whom the gift is for and ask that she use her talents to put something special together.

"I want Wadee to be a refreshing company with which to do business," O'Connell says. "My goal is to be a trusted resource for unique products and gift ideas."

Kristina and her husband Tim have made Wilmington their home for eleven years. In addition to Wadee, Kristina volunteers as the Enrichment Coordinator for the Shawsheen and the West Elementary Schools. There was a short time a couple of years ago that they contemplated a move to New Hampshire in order to be closer to family, but they are very happy not to have followed through with it.

"Before we moved here, I didn't even know where Wilmington was," O'Connell said. "The more we live here, the more we like it here."

The O'Connells are going to be in need of a Wadee Gift Pail themselves in about 20 days. Callie, 6, and Tess, 3, are going to be welcoming a new addition to the family. The O'Connells will opt for a "not sure yet" pail.

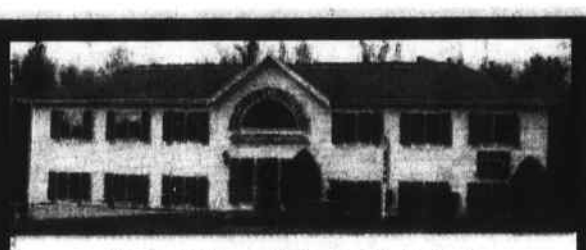

"We're going with the surprise element," O'Connell said. "There just aren't enough surprises in life anymore."

Division 2 North Softball tournament

'Cats get by Bedford but fall to Amesbury

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

In the second round of the state tournament last year, Wilmington was held scoreless for two days and 18 innings by league rival Triton Regional, who eventually won the marathon game, 2-0.

On Friday afternoon in the 'Cats state tournament opener at Aprile Field, the scoreless streak went to 30 consecutive innings before Wilmington scored a run on a dropped fly ball in the bottom of the 13th inning as they came away with a 1-0 win over Bedford in the Division 2 North sectional first round contest.

After Lani Cabral-Pini led off the inning with a walk, she was sacrificed to second base by Katie Martell. After a pop up, Stephanie Steeves sent a fly ball to the right center gap. Bedford right fielder Shallon Silverstrone came racing over and slit to make the grab but the ball popped out of her glove allowing Cabral-Pini to score easily with the game's only run.

Junior pitcher Cathy Sheerin pitched extremely well tossing 13 scoreless innings for the complete game shut out. She gave up just seven hits, with three coming on bunt singles, while she allowed just one walk and struck out nine. Bedford also reached base on three errors, however, take away clean-up hitter Cassy Toverna, who was 4-for-5, and the other eight Bedford batters were a combined 2-for-39 against Sheerin.

"I was really worried about their first two batters," said head coach Bob Surran. "They do a lot of slapping and bunting and I thought we did a real nice job of keeping them off base. Bedford likes to bunt and whenever (third baseman) Brittany Collins took one step back, (Bedford head coach Dave Wilson) noticed that and they put a bunt down. If she moved in one step, he would try the slap or have them hit away."

Wilmington had all kinds of chances to score but like last year's loss to Triton, they just couldn't get the timely hit. The 'Cats left 11 runners on base in the game, including eight in scoring position. With the bases loaded and one out in the bottom of the first, Bedford pitcher Grace Armstrong struck out the final two batters to get out of the jam.

With runners at second and third with one out in the third, Armstrong got a pop up and a strikeout to end that threat. With a runner at second with one out in the fourth, Armstrong struck out the final two batters to get out of that threat.

Wilmington also left freshman lead-off hitter Katie Cole (3-for-6) on second base twice later on in the game, while in the bottom of the 12th, Cole hit a line drive back to Armstrong, who then doubled up Collins at first base.

On the flip side of that, the 'Cats did a decent job defensively. Although they made three errors, the big play came in the top of the 11th inning. With Kristen Merlo at second base with one out, Toverna singled to left field. Merlo ran to third and then paused before breaking for home and the 'Cats nailed her at home on two throws from left fielder Steeves to shortstop Cabral-Pini to catcher Julie Martell who applied the tag.

Julie Martell played a strong defensive game, as she picked off a runner at first base in the second inning, while she threw out a runner trying to steal second and also nailed two others out at first on bunt attempts.

Bedford left nine runners on base, including two each in the fourth and ninth innings but Sheerin got out of the jams with a strikeout and a grounder in the fourth, and two ground balls in the ninth. When it was all said and done, all but three of the 33 outs in the game came by strikeouts or ground balls or pop ups in the infield.

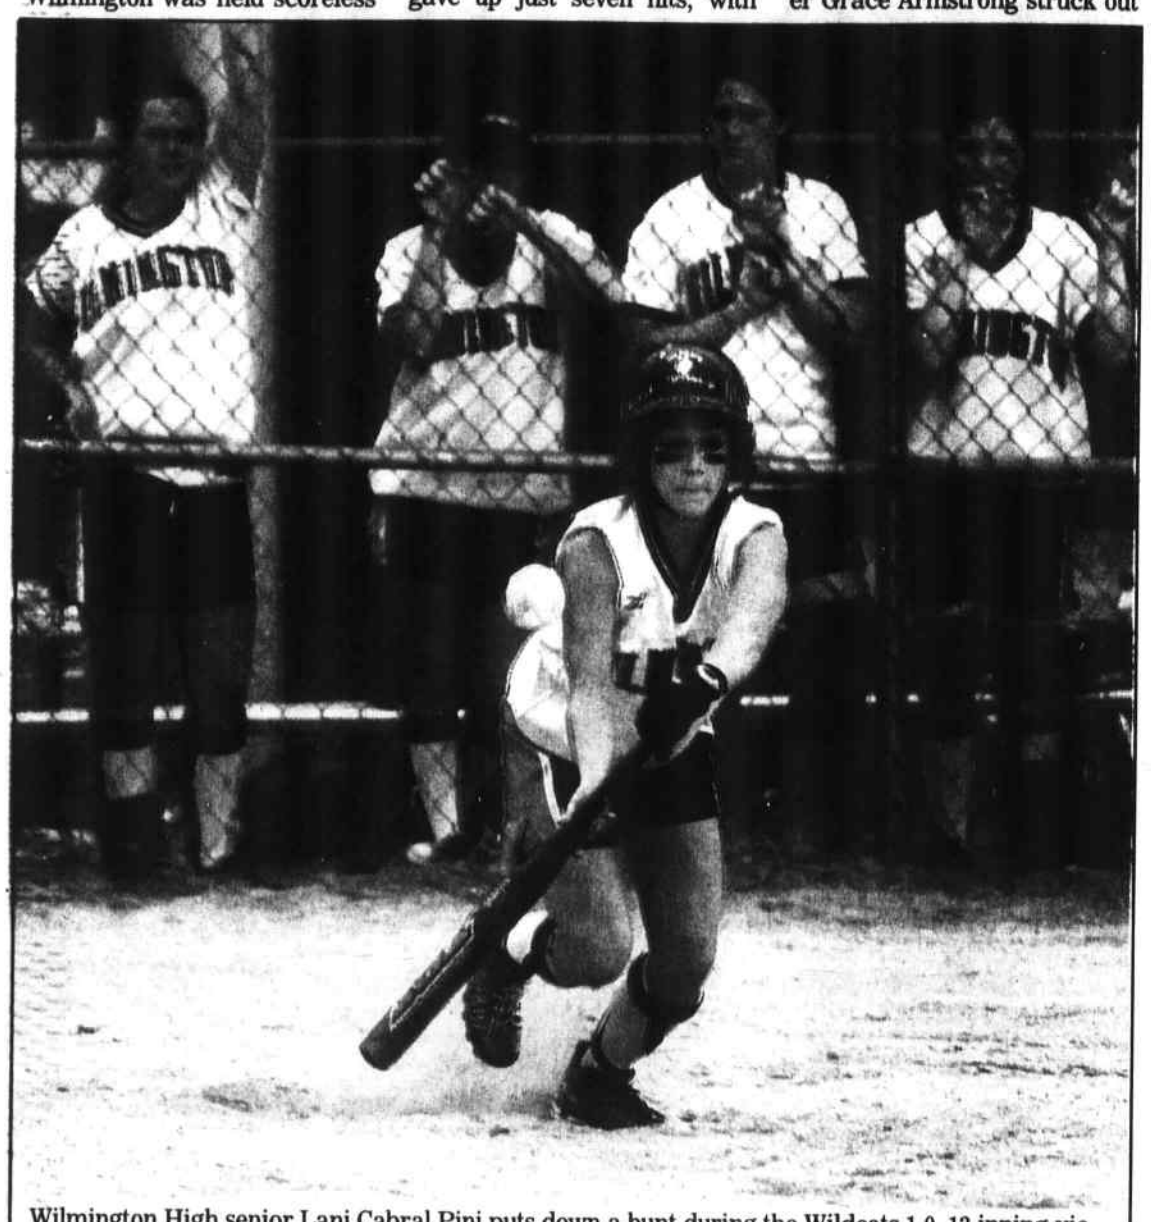

Besides Cole's three hits, Sheerin was the only other batter with multiple hits as she had two. Cabral-Pini reached base on three walks, stole two bases and scored the only run. Collins and Maggie Sorrentino also had singles for the home town team.

The following day the 'Cats were defeated by Amesbury, 3-0, in the quarterfinal round which eliminated the team from further play.

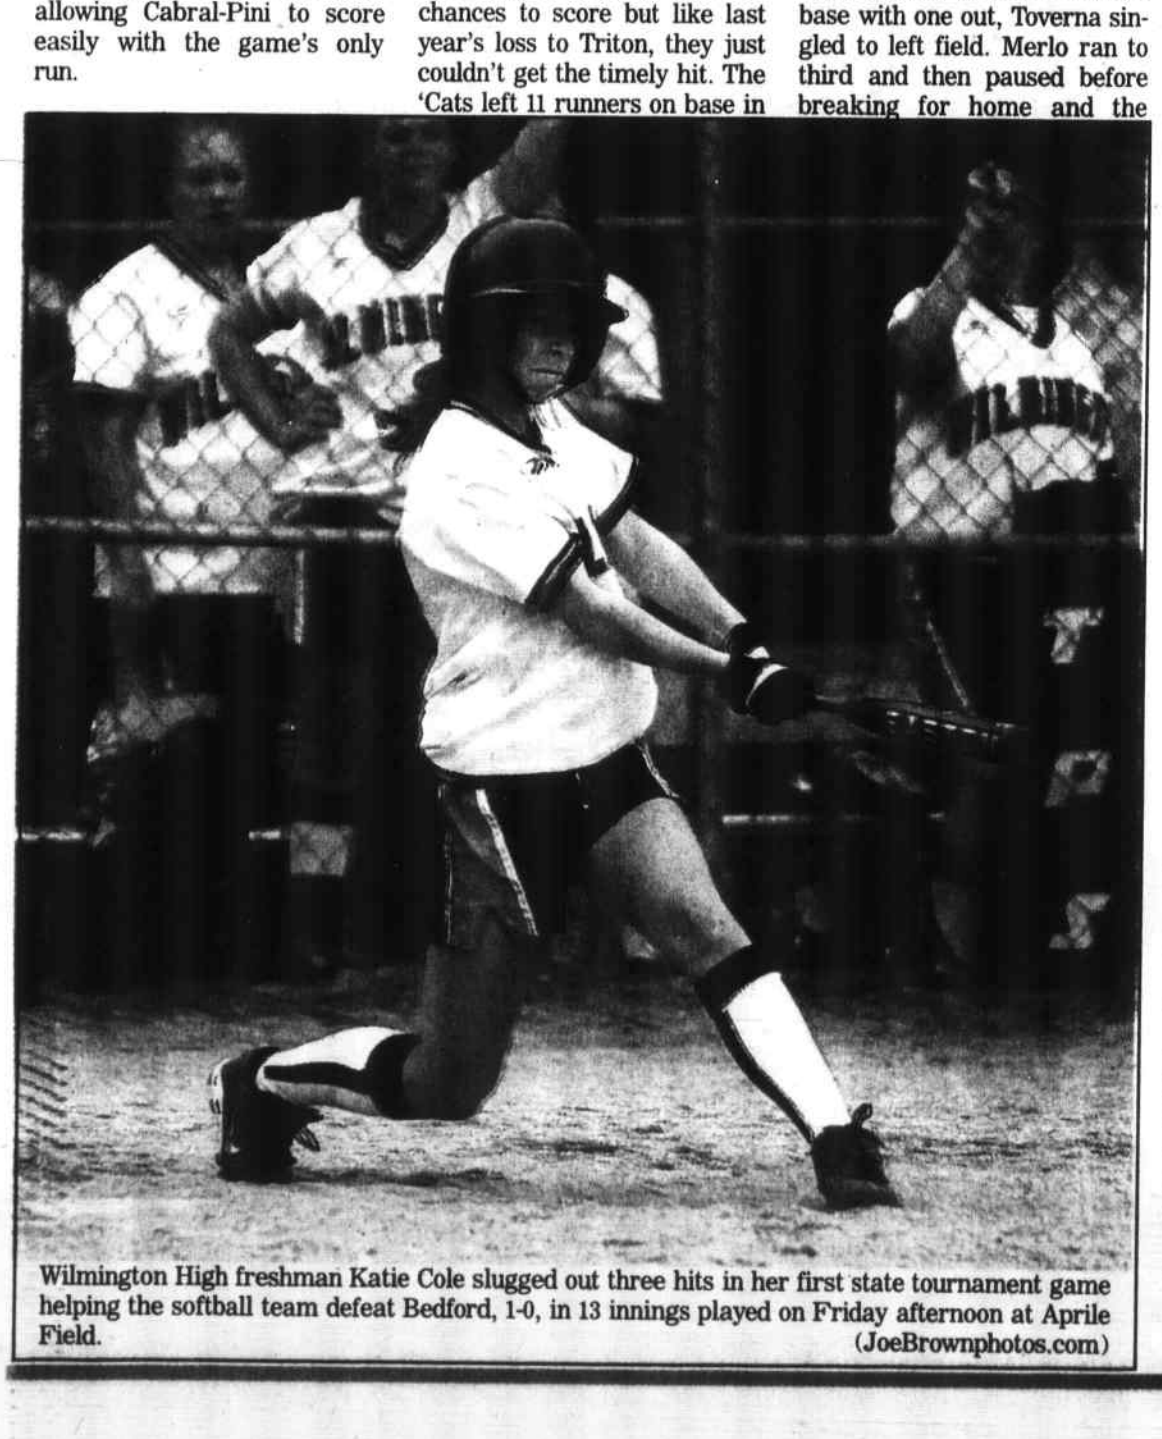

The 'Cats end the season with an 16-5 overall record with three of the losses to Amesbury, who remained undefeated at 22-0 with the win.

"We came out flat especially in the first two innings making some defensive mistakes," said Surran. "We played very well after that. We had two on in the sixth inning but just couldn't get that big base hit we needed.

"We didn't score on (Amesbury pitcher Ashley) Waters for the past (seven games and) three years. She's a gamer. She's tough, she's very competitive and I'm glad I won't be seeing her anymore."

Sheerin has come a long way on the mound

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Unfairly, Cathy Sheerin has followed a long list of all-scholastic Wilmington High School pitchers. From Adrienne Fay to Katelyn Sughrue to Jackee Joyce, all three of them guided the Wildcats to a pair of state championships to three deep runs in the state tournament to a sectional finalist trophy, respectively.

As a junior Sheerin came into this season with huge shoes to fill. She leaves this season, feeling comfortable in her new attire knowing that she not only has dramatically improved from last year to this year but from the start of this season until the end which came on Saturday in the team's 3-0 loss to undefeated Amesbury in the second round of the Division 2 North sectional tournament.

Sheerin has worked extremely hard to get to the point where she is now: that is a solid pitcher who kept Wilmington in every game it played, who got better and better with her pitches, her command and her overall presence on the mound. Sheerin's mechanics also improved, which helped her velocity and the variety of pitches she throws.

"Cathy has really thrown a lot," said head coach Bob Surran after watching Sheerin toss 13 shut out innings in the team's 1-0, 13 inning first round win over Bedford on Friday. "She basically throws year round and the only thing I ask of her is to take one month off because sometimes that can be too much on a girl of her age."

It seemed like Sheerin was throwing for 12 months on Friday. She tossed one inning shy of back-to-back shutouts in a three hour span limiting Bedford to just seven hits without issuing a walk through the first 12 innings before cracking down to one walk in the 13th, and striking out nine batters. Take away the team's fourth batter Cassy Taverna, who has four hits including two bunt singles, and Sheerin held the rest of the line-up to just three hits in 39 at bats, including the last three batters going 0-for-15.

"Yeah there was a lot of pressure (as the game went on) and it was nerve racking," said Sheerin. "But at the same time it was such a rush. I knew I had my fielders behind me and they came through every time. The defense was just amazing. The offense took a while but we came through in the end but the defense definitely stepped it up."

Sheerin got out of several jams throughout the game as one runner was thrown out at home and she also left runners at second and third with one out in the ninth by getting two ground ball outs.

"I just wanted the game to end," she said. "But I wanted us to win so badly especially the seniors because it was their last home game and what better way to remember it with a victory."

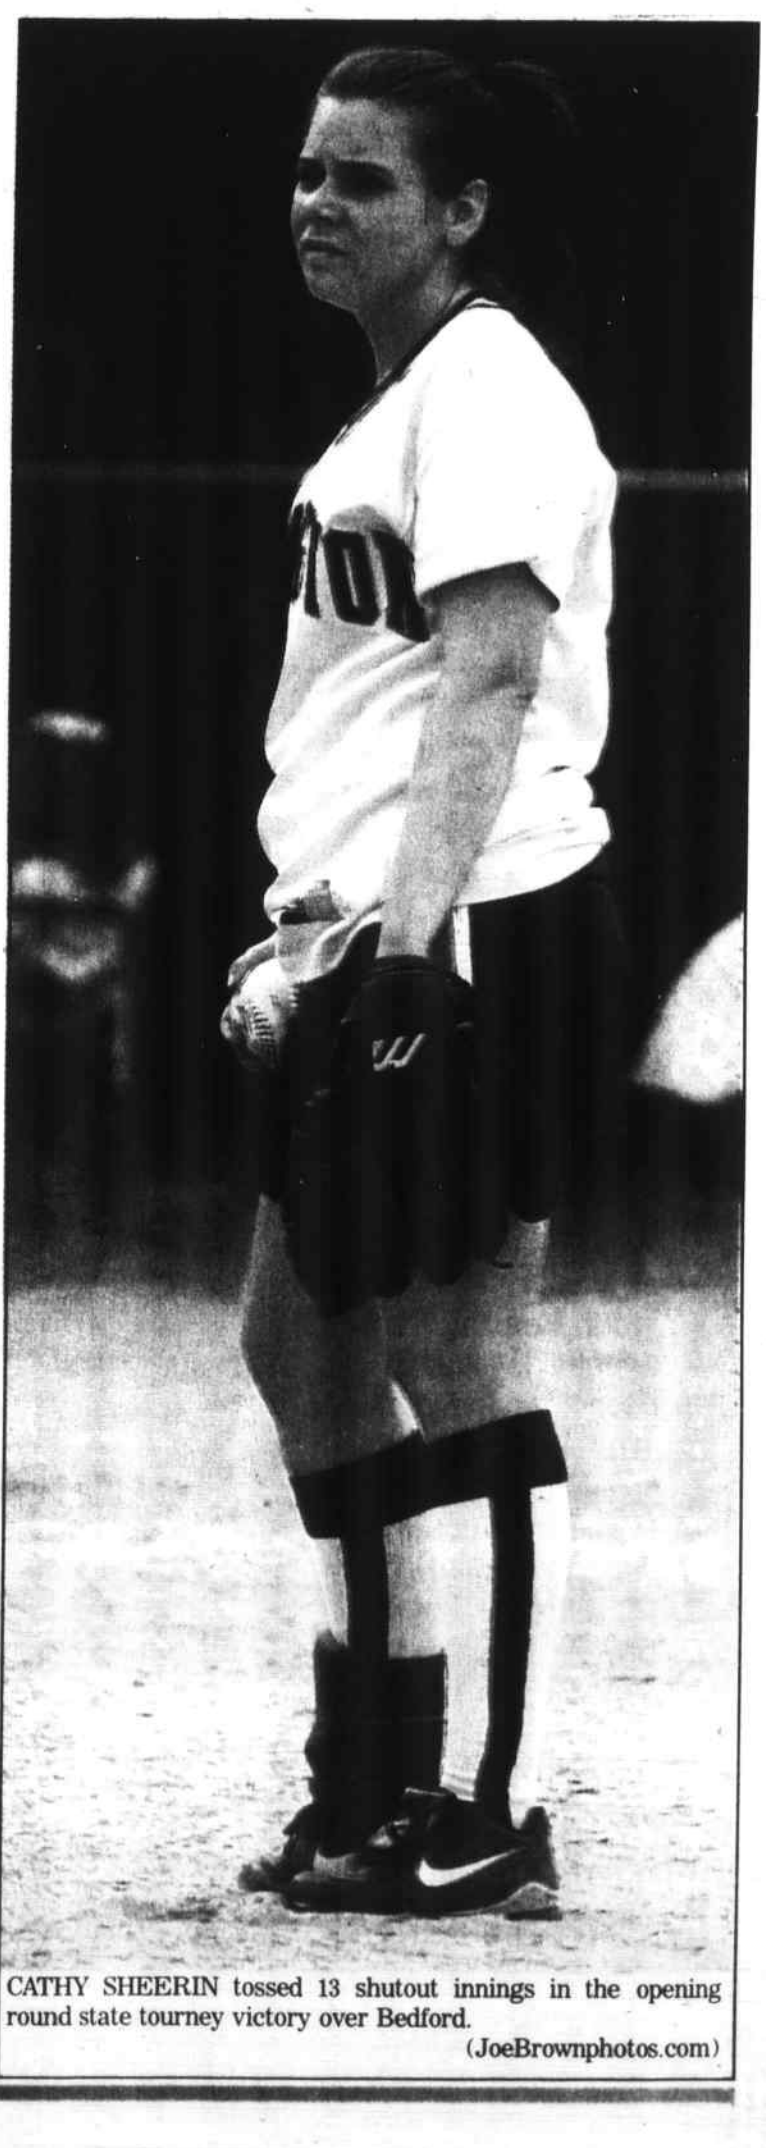

Sheerin said that she worked on strength and conditioning over the off season as well as just getting more experience throwing the softball. Her fastball is much better and it comes out of her hand much stronger. Her drop ball has improved a lot and she just mixes up her pitches very well, a sure sign of maturity.

"Last year I played right field and I got a small taste of what pitching was like," she said. "I wanted to get better as a pitcher so I threw three nights a week, I played in a summer league and I did a lot of strength and conditioning."

All of that hard work and another year to mature seems to really have put Sheerin in the right direction.

"She's a consummate team player," said Surran. "She really works hard and she's always for all of the other kids. If Ashleigh (Joyce) pitches, Cathy is right there cheering her on. Cathy's done a great job for us this season."

And there's still one more year left where if she continues where she left off this year, she'll be taking off those shoes she filled.

After shutting down Saugus, Lady Redmen defeated in tourney

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Two years ago the Tewksbury High softball team couldn't get the clutch hit and went on to lose to Saugus in the first round of the state tournament. On Thursday afternoon, the Lady Redmen avenged that loss by defeating Saugus, 5-0, at Strong Field in the first round of the Division 2 North sectional tournament.

Senior pitcher Liz Mucica recorded the shut out as she tossed seven terrific innings giving up just three infield hits while she didn't allow a walk and she struck out 13.

"This is pretty sweet," said Mucica. "This usually happens - it takes us a while to get the bats going but we always come through in the end."

Tewksbury scored one run in the fourth inning and broke the game open with three more in the fifth, all with two outs, before adding the fifth and final run in the sixth inning. Senior Danielle Delponte led the way going 3-for-4 with a double, two runs and two RBI, while, Alex Sacco and Sherin Elliott (and two stolen bases) also had two hits each.

Actually the game winning run came on a sacrifice foul pop up off the bat of senior Alicia Rocco which went behind the first base bag. Saugus second baseman Alison McCarthy made a nice basket catch going to her left, and pinch runner Michelle Coppi came in from third to score the first run of the game.

"It's funny that the game winning run came in on a 60 foot pop up," said head coach Leo DiRocco. "I give (third base coach and assistant coach) Todd (DiRocco) a lot of credit for that. He's the one who sent her and it worked out great for us. That was a huge run at the time."

With one out in the bottom of the fifth, No. 9 hitter Sammy Macy walked. She moved to second on a single to left field by Dina Ferriero. After Sacco sacrificed both runners up a base with a nice bunt, Delponte doubled over the left fielder's head driving in both Macy and Ferriero making it 3-0. Coppi again ran for Delponte and she scored her second run of the game coming in on an infield error as Mucica's ground ball to second base was thrown away.

Pinch hitter Michelle Kelly led off the bottom of the sixth with a triple down the right field line. Ashley Riccardi singled up the middle driving in Kelly making it 5-0 which ended the team's scoring.

Meanwhile Mucica was near perfect. After retiring the side in order in the first, her only trouble of the game came in the second inning. After the lead-off batter reached on an infield single, Mucica struck out the next two batters before giving up another infield single on a ball that was clearly foul in front of the first base bag. But with two on and two out, Mucica got out of the threat by striking out the third batter in the inning.

"I just go with the flow," said Mucica. "Danielle (Delponte the team's catcher) really keeps my head into the game at all times. I know I have great fielders behind me who'll make the play, so the pressure doesn't get to me."

Thereafter Mucica retired all but two of the final 17 batters to face her giving up a bloop single which landed over the pitcher's mound, and then hitting a batter to lead off the seventh. Of the final 18 outs of the game, Mucica got 12 of them on strikeouts, including five of the last eight.

"I'm more confident this year with my pitching than last year," Mucica said. "I'm experienced a lot more and I've been in much more different situations this year. I know my pitching a lot better and I trust my fielders and I know my teammates will always be there to pick me up when I need them too."

Defensively, Tewksbury wasn't tested too often with the strikeout numbers of Mucica, but the right side of the infield came up big in the top of the third. With the bases empty and no outs, No. 9 hitter Meghan Pinkham sent a ground ball up the middle. Second baseman Alex Sacco went to her right and made a nice back hand stab. Off balance, Sacco threw the ball to first and Ferriero made an outstanding stretch making the grab and recording the out.

"These kids are so dedicated," said DiRocco. "We had a 5:30 am practice (on Wednesday). The seniors had a field trip to Boston for senior week so the underclassmen voted that they would come at 5:30 am yesterday and all of the kids were here working hard and getting ready for the tournament. I think that says so much about the team."

On Sunday afternoon, Tewksbury was defeated in the quarterfinals of the tournament, 4-0, to Triton Regional. Ferriero had the lone hit in the game for the Lady Redmen.

Tewksbury High senior catcher Danielle Delponte delivered a big two-run double during the softball team's first round 5-0 state tournament victory over Saugus held last Thursday at Livingston Street Park.

Tewksbury High's Sherin Elliott slides safely into second base with one of her two stolen bases on the day helping the softball team defeat Saugus, 5-0, in the first round of the Division 2 North sectional tournament played last Thursday.

Another incredible week for Lauren Barbour

Tewksbury High senior Chris Byrne competed in the state's decalthlon on Monday and Tuesday at Burlington High School finishing in 11th place out of 76 participants.
(JoeBrownphotos.com)

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

It was another banner week for the Tewksbury High boys and girls track and field teams, especially senior Lauren Barbour.

After going to the all night graduation party Friday evening into Saturday morning, on about two hours sleep, Barbour and a handful of other individuals from both teams took part in the All-State Meet held at Worcester State College.

There Barbour finished with a pair of fourth places in the 300 hurdles (44.94), and the triple jump (35-10.50) while she also anchored the fourth place 4x400 relay team joining Colleen Fitzpatrick, Stacey Ossinger and Nikki Cunha, as they came in with a time of 4:02.33.

In addition, on Tuesday evening, Barbour was the overall top finisher in the state's heptathlon held at Lowell High School. Eighty different females participated and she was the top scoring 3,855 points in seven different events held over two days. She was best in the 100 hurdles (15.3) and the 200 (26.06), while she was third in the 800 coming in at a Tewksbury best time of 2:28.0, which is amazing considering she has run the 400 and the hurdles all season long.

"She's just phenomenal and there's no other way to put it," said assistant coach Peter Molloy.

Her other events included: high jump (4-8), shot put (26 feet), long jump (15 feet) and javelin (70 feet).

Ossinger was 20th at the heptathlon scoring 3,210 points, led by strong performances in the high jump (clearing 4-2 in her first attempt all season) and finishing at 2:36.21 in the 800. Cunha was 20th overall and the top freshman in the entire meet as she finished with 2,971 points led by her 4-6 clear in the high jump (the only other time she tried it this year she didn't clear the opening height of four feet) and the third best long jump out of the entire field at 15.50.

Tewksbury won the team meet with 10,036 points which was more than 500 points better than runner-up Stoneham.

Back to the all-state meet, the Tewksbury girls finished in 8th place out of 67 teams with 23.50 points. Besides Barbour and the relay team, Cunha was fourth in the pole vault (9-06) for the place finishers (top eight). The 4x400 relay team, Barbour in the hurdles and triple jump and Cunha in the pole vault all advance to this weekend's New England Meet which will be held at Thornton Academy in Sacco, Maine.

Amanda Parsons finished 17th in the entire state in the pole vault clearing 8-6 and Ossinger was 17th in the 400 at 1:00.46.

As for the boys team, they finished in a four way tie for 15th place at the all-state meet with 12 points. The team score was the same as other Division 1 powerhouses Peabody, Lowell and Chelmsford. Tewksbury had three performers place including Kevin Ianetta in the 300 hurdles (39.37), Chris Dietsch in the 100 hurdles (15.27) and Peter Fortunato in the mile (4:24.81) as they finished fourth, fifth and sixth, respectively.

The 4x400 relay team finished 11th at 3:28, the 4x800 team was 21st at 8:28.31 and David Finethy was 15th in the pole vault clearing 11 feet.

Kevin Ianetta, Fortunato and Dietsch all move on to this weekend's New England Meet.

The boys also had several strong performances in the state's decalthon held Monday and Tuesday at Burlington High. Out of 76 kids, Kevin Ianetta placed third overall with 5,804 points followed by Chris Byrne (11th at 5,296) and Chris Dietsch (34th at 4,542) as Tewksbury finished third as a team in the five events held on both days totaling 15,642 points trailing Mohawk Trail Regional (16,225) and Stoneham (15,901).

Ianetta had the fastest time in the 110 meter hurdles (15.24) and was second in both the 400 (51.33) and the 1,500 meter race (4:32.12). Dietsch's highlight came in the 100 as he posted the fastest time out of anyone at 11.52 seconds. Byrne was solid in almost every event highlighted by a 4:47.01 time in the 1,500 meter race and a 12.21 second time in the 100.

Tewksbury also had a 'B' team compete at the decalthlon as Dave McCauley was 36th overall at 4,517 points, followed by Mike Reed (41st) and Nick Ianetta (54th).

Rams baseball team outsted from state tournament

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Shawsheen Tech baseball team wrapped up their season last weekend with a 13-5 loss to Winthrop in the first round of the Division 3 North Tournament at Cook Street Field on Saturday afternoon.

The fourth seeded Rams fell victim to 20th seeded Winthrop, who entered the tournament with just a 6-14 record, but won a preliminary round game over 13th seeded Swampscott and went on to defeat Weston after beating Shawsheen.

As of press time, Winthrop was preparing for the District semi-finals against Georgetown.

The Rams held a 2-0 lead entering the top of the fourth inning Saturday, but Winthrop exploded for four runs in the fourth and six more in the sixth inning to blow the game open. Winthrop was aided by several Ram miscues during their rallies.

For Shawsheen coach Kevin Bloom, the end of the season offered an opportunity to look back on a very successful season that saw the Rams finish at 17-6, which was good for second place in the Commonwealth Athletic Conference Upper Division. They also advanced to the finals of the state vocational tournament last week before falling to Worcester Voke.

"It's disappointing that we did not play our best game to finish up, but we had a lot of positives this season," Bloom said. "It just seems that every year we run into Cinderella in the tournament."

Last season the Rams were eliminated in the quarterfinals by 21st seed Watertown which advanced all the way to the District finals and two years ago the top seed Rams lost in the first round to 16th seeded Lynnfield who also advanced to the district finals.

Regardless of the way the season ended the Rams did accomplish many of their goals this season, including qualifying for the voke tournament and competing for the CAC title.

"We accomplished a lot. It's tough to get knocked out, but you have to remember that only three teams in the state don't lose their last game of the season," Bloom said. "We competed all year and we had guys who stepped up, especially our seniors."

And those seniors will be sorely missed next season, as the Rams will say goodbye to eight key players off of this year's squad. The seniors include several local players including Tewksbury residents Jay Sholl and Rob Borden, along with Wilmington residents Kyle Browne, Matt Hogg, Dan Reed, Jim Dipaolo and Chris Searles. John Higgins of Billerica was the other senior, and Bloom is sad to see this group leave.

Among the group's accomplishments during their four years are a 65-28 record, four trips to the state tournament, three trips to the voke tournament championship game, two trips to the district quarterfinals and a top seed in state tournament. This is also the first group of seniors that fourth year coach Bloom has had since their freshman year.

"They were a great group. In addition to being talented they were also fine young men," Bloom said. "It was a pleasure working with them. You could see their leadership develop and it was passed on to the younger players through the way they approached each game."

As much as they led by example off the field, this group also led the team on the field, particularly Sholl, who earned CAC MVP honors by leading the Rams with a .394 batting average to go along with four home run and a team leading 25 RBI. Sholl was also 5-4 as a pitcher for the Rams with a 1.97 ERA and 38 strikeouts in 56 innings. Three of his losses came by one run. Browne hit .343 with 14 RBI and led the team with 26 runs scored, while also throwing out double digits in would be base stealers from his catcher position. He was also named MVP of the CAC-MVC All-Star game. Hogg hit .322 with 21 runs scored and a team leading 20 walks as many Ram opponents worked around his potent bat.

"This group helped to re-establish the reputation of this program at Shawsheen," Bloom said. "They established Shawsheen as a baseball power not only in the voke tournament, but in the state tournament as well. They have given us something to build on."

Three Wildcats end solid track seasons

Three Wilmington High School student-athletes competed at this weekend's all-state track and field meet held at Worcester State College.

Senior Brian Giamberardino, who was mistakenly not mentioned in last week's edition for advancing to the meet, was the top Wildcat performer as he finished 13th in the entire state in the javelin tossing 156-02 feet.

Senior Chris Murray ends his tremendous high school athletic career between cross country and indoor and outdoor track with a 16th best time in the entire state in the mile as he came across at 4:35.87.

Finally junior Jackie Mello was 16th in the preliminary heat of the 200 meter dash coming in at 26.88.

– JAMIE POTE –

Correction

In last week's Tewksbury edition there was an error and an omission from the high school athletic awards list. Senior Ryan Walsh received the Danny Gillette Memorial Award and not the Terri Lightfoot Memorial Award.

Also, the first year girls lacrosse program gave out awards to Jenn Foley and Leanne Belmonte as the team's Co-MVPs and Kristen Palmer and Caitlin Goffman who both received the coach's award.

We apologize for the errors.

Tigers edge out Red Sox, 8-7, in Major League play

Major League Baseball
Tigers 8, Red Sox 7

The Red Sox and Tigers hooked up in a Memorial Day marathon in which the Tigers edged the Red Sox 8-7 in 8 innings.

The Red Sox jumped out to an early four run lead in the first inning on the strength of hits by Tom See, Tyler Warner and Mike Smith. Tiger starter Steve DellaPelle settled down and allowed only three more runs in his six innings of work.

In the third inning the Tigers fought their way back to tie the score at 5 with the heavy hitting of Cole Pfeffer, John Parsons, J.B. Thompson, Steve DellaPelle and Pat Young. The Tigers would push across two more runs against hard luck Red Sox pitchers Dave Mello and Mike Gracia over the next three innings without the aid of a hit.

The stage was not set for extra innings as the game was tied 7-7 after six. Tiger reliever Jeff Ledger pitched a strong two innings of relief to gain the win. Ledger was helped by an outstanding defensive play in the top of the eighth as Tiger centerfielder John Parsons gunned down Tom See at the plate. In the Tiger half of the eighth, Zach Copp led off with a single and was moved to second on a beautiful bunt single by Pat Young.

With one out and runners on 1st and 2nd, Derek O'Dea hit a ground ball in the hole between first and second base. Second baseman Nick Luise made a valiant diving stop but his throw was late to first to get O'Dea. On the play Zach Copp didn't stop running around third base and scored on a great hook slide avoiding the tag of Sox catcher Dave Mello.

After many heart breaking one and two-run losses the Tigers finally were on the winning side.

Special thanks go out to Player Agent Dave Souza, Tiger Coaches Ken Pfeffer and Steve Copp, Indian Manager Scott McDougall and Jeff Ledger for their help in getting the field in playing shape after the all rainfall.

Yankees 4, White Sox 3

After a layoff of over two weeks due to rain and the Memorial Day Weekend holiday, the Captive Images sponsored Yankees finally took the field on Thursday against the visiting Reading Trophy sponsored White Sox. Chris Frissore took the ball to start the game for the Yankees, and was in immediate trouble. After giving up bloop hits to Ty Hubner and Brett Meuse to score one run, Josh Townsend and Will Prince walked to load the bases. Rob Musto followed a strikeout with a fielder's choice which scored Meuse, but erased Townsend at third for the second out, and a popup to third ended the bleeding.

The Yankees got one run back in their half of the inning when Mike Ciampa reached on a fielder's choice, stole second and came home when Mike Brent's hit to right was misplayed into a double. That was all the Yankees would get as Musto got the final batter to strike out.

Both pitchers settled down over the next two innings, with Musto striking out the side in the third to end his day's work. Hubner came on in the fourth for the Sox, and didn't miss a beat, facing the top of the order, he allowed only a single to Frissore who made it to third on a stolen base and a passed ball but was stranded there to end the inning.

Frissore made quick work of the White Sox in the fourth, striking out the number 2, 3 and 4 hitters in succession. Buoyed by his efforts, the Yankees attacked Hubner in the fifth as Brent reached and went to second on a error by the shortstop and continued to third on a passed ball.

Brian Hurley walked and Pat Magliano ripped a single, scoring Brent and Hurley on some aggressive coaching and baserunning.

Andrew LaRosa kept the inning alive with a single, but Hubner found his composure and retired the last two batters to end the inning with the Yankees taking the lead 3-2. The lead didn't last long as Dalton Rolli walked to open the sixth, he went to second on a passed ball, and took third on a single by Matt Boutoures, who then took second unchallenged on the next pitch.

Bearing down, Frissore got the next two batters on strikeouts, but leadoff man Hubner hit a ground ball to short which was juggled just long enough for Rolli to score to tie the game and Hubner to reach first safely. The inning would end tied up 3-3 as the last batter went down swinging at strike three.

After a strikeout and a ground out to open the bottom half of the sixth, it looked like extra innings, but Ciampa hustled out an infield hit, then stole second and came around to score the winning run on a rocket to left by Frissore as the Yankees took the game 4-3.

White Sox 7, A's 6

Finally a break in Saturday's weather produces one of the more exciting games of the year at Rotary Park.

The A's got off to a quick lead in the first inning, as Andrew Spurr drove in Adam Siegal who was hit by a pitch. They added two more in the second inning, as Mike Micalizzi drove in Adam Kline, and then Kevin Mitchell drove in Micalizzi.

The White Sox answered in their half of the second, with 5 runs, starting with doubles from Wells, and Rob Musto, and followed with run producing singles by Pat Barry, Dalton Rolli, and John Keough.

Brett Meuse's second home run of 2005, added another Sox run in the third. Micalizzi again came up with another clutch hit, as he drove in Kline and Brian Halas in the fourth.

The White Sox were holding onto a slim 6-5 lead going into the 6th inning. John Keough went the distance for the White Sox, and was starting to feel the effects of the 80 degree afternoon, as he walked home the tying run, between two great catches in left field by Will Prince, and a critical tag out at home by Meuse.

In the bottom of the sixth, the A's brought in their ace to hold off the White Sox. The Sox first batter, Matt Carderelli, was robbed of extra bases by a great diving catch in center field by Adam Kline. Ty Hubner popped up to short for out #2, and then Brett Meuse blasted his second homerun of the game over the leftfield fence, to give the White Sox a hard fought 7-6 victory.

Twins 3, White Sox 0

This game was as good as expected, as these two pitching staffs didn't allow any walks, and the game was played in a record time of 70 minutes.

The Twins scored three runs in the first inning on doubles by Brendon OBrien, Sean Hanley, and Jeff Kannally, and that was virtually all the hitting and scoring for the day. As a single by Kannally in the fourth inning was the only other Twin's hit.

Kannally and Hanley limited the White Sox to one hit, a single by Ty Hubner in the first, as they combined to strike out eleven. Hubner and Rob Musto also combined to strike out eleven, as they scattered five hits.

Yankees in a tie for first

The Captive Images sponsored Yankees are in a three way tie for second behind the un-defeated Twins, with the White Sox and the A's. Playing the Shea Concrete sponsored Orioles on Saturday, the Yankee bats came alive as they spotted starter Andy Owens nine runs over the first three innings. In the first inning, Owens helped his own cause with a leadoff double, and was sacrificed in by Vinny Scifo on a fly to center field.

The Orioles got one run of their own in the first on a lead off walk by Brian Callahan, and a single by Ed Barraso who came home on an infield out by Matt McKenna.

The Yankees exploded for seven more in the third as Pat Magliano reached on an error to lead off. Andrew LaRosa followed with a single, and Drew Cummings was hit by a pitch to load the bases.

Mike Donahue then stroked a two RBI single to score Owens and LaRosa, and moving Cummings up to third. He scored on a wild pitch and the inning kept rolling with Owens' second double of the game which plated Donahue, and a Scifo single scoring Owens.

Chris Frissore followed with a hard triple, scoring Sifo, and came home himself on a wild pitch to round out the scoring. The Orioles got right back into it in their half of the inning, scoring two runs on no hits and five walks and knocking Owens, whose control had left him, out of the game. Donahue came on to get out of the inning allowing just one more run to cross the plate.

The Yanks extended their lead by one in the fourth on a one out single by Brian Hurley who stole second and moved to third when Magliano again reached on an error.

Hurley scored on a sacrifice fly by LaRosa to make the score 9-4. Walks again were the culprit in the fourth as the

Shawsheen Boys Lacrosse enjoyed winning season

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Shawsheen Tech lacrosse team recently completed another successful season, and although the year did end with a 7-3 loss to Marblehead in the first round of the Division 2 East Tournament last week, Shawsheen coach Al Costabile was very happy with his team,s overall performance this season, finishing with an overall record of 11-5, following up a 14-1 record and league championship last year.

"We had some big wins and overall we did a very good job," Costabile said. "We were just not as talented as we were last season. That is not a knock on this group, but we just lost a lot of seniors. Also, the league got better so to go 11-4 was very good."

During the regular season the Rams compete in the Mass Technical Lacrosse League, which features many Division 3 teams like themselves who are new to lacrosse as a varsity sport. But once in the tournament, the competition level heats up, as not only do the Rams play more experienced team, but they also move up to Division 2.

As evidence of the hard work of the Rams and the improved play throughout the MTLL, the Rams loss to Marblehead was very competitive as opposed to the past two years when the Rams were eliminated in the first round by scores of 12-2 and 16-4, the latter being to Marblehead two years ago.

In this year's matchup with Marblehead, the Rams trailed only 4-2 at the half on goals by Kyle Marzeoti and Tewksbury's Ron Gordon. After a scoreless third quarter, the Rams still found themselves within two goals at 5-3 midway through the fourth quarter, after another goal by Marzeoti. Marblehead added two late goals to account for the final score, but Costabile was very pleased with the way his team played.

"The game was a lot closer than the score indicated. I thought we played very well against a very talented team," Costabile said. "We were in it right to the end and that shows improvement for the program. It is a step in the right direction."

The Rams had several key local contributors on the team this season, and three of the most prominent were seniors Peter Capraro, Ron Gordon and Hank Chase of Tewksbury. Capraro and Gordon were forwards and chase has been the Rams starting goalie for the past two seasons.

Capraro was the Rams second leading scorer this season with 25 goals and 16 assists, while Gordon had 16 goals and five assists. Chase had a great season, including 24 saves in the loss to Marblehead.

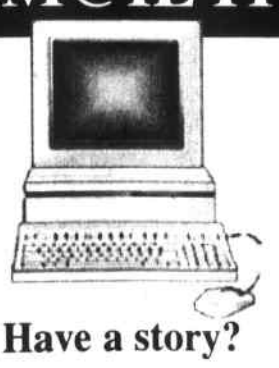

"Peter became a very good scorer for us and he is going to be a big void to fill, and Ron will also be sorely missed. He made a big contribution for us," Costabile said. "And Hank showed what he can do in that last game. He has had to great years in goal for us and will be another big void to fill."

Along with those seniors, the Rams will lose another key component when Costabile leaves his head coaching post to take over as Shawsheen,s athletic director next season. Costabile has overseen the program since its inception three years ago and whoever takes over next season will have some big shoes to fill.

Costabile of course would not take credit for the team,s success, but he does acknowledge that the program is off to a good start.

"I feel like at least we have established a solid foundation and a winning tradition," Costabile said. "They tasted a league championship in just their second year and I think they can be a winning program for years to come."

Orioles and Yankees battle in Wilmington Little League

Orioles tied the score on five walks, and singles by Mike Arria and Kyle Creedan.

The score would stand at 9-9 into the top of the eighth inning when Owens lined a one out double (his third of the game) and Scifo doubled him in with the go ahead run.

Frissore followed with his second triple of the game scoring Scifo to give the Yankees an 11-9 lead. Scifo who had relieved Donahue in the fourth then made short work of the Orioles in their half of the inning, striking out the side to preserve the win

A Baseball National League

Nationals 6, Brewers 6

Tuesday night at Glen Road field the A league Nationals and Brewers played a hard fought game that ended in a 6-6 tie with the skies turning dark. The game had outstanding pitching, timely hitting and good defense on both sides. For the Nationals Nick Gettler took the mound first and pitched 2 fine innings, followed by Ryan Carroccino, Chris Saporito and finally Alexander Pizzette, who all had excellent performances on the mound and in the field.

The pitchers were supported by the solid catching of Chris Jackson, along with great infield defense from Dylan Walsh and Craig Smith. Andrew Bezjian, Jimmy Carroll, Brian Eckelcamp and Sam Alatalo patrolled the outfield with speed and skill. Base hits from Chris Saporito, Alexander Pizzette, Ryan Carroccino, Andrew Bezjian, Nick Gettler and Sam Alatalo drove in the Nationals' runs in this tight contest.

Rockies 10, Marlins 8

The Single A Rockies made it two-in-a-row with a hard fought 10-8 over the Marlins. The Rockies pulled out to an early seven run lead after two innings but the Marlins climbed their way back with one in the fifth and seven in the sixth falling just short. The Rockies played flawless defense and capitalized on timely hitting to earn a win.

Ryan McEvoy, Eric Grabar and Matt Daley each threw two innings in the victory. Andrew Sutton, Tyler Carlson, Nick DiStefano, Alex Guarino, Bobby Brabant, Ryan McEvoy and Eric Grabar all contributed in the offensive attack. Andrew Baker played a strong inning behind the plate while Mitchell Fisher, Cody McGowan and Zach VonKahle were outstanding in the field.

Softball

Phillies 22, Reds 18

The East Gate sponsored Phillies won their second in a row against the powerful Captive Images sponsored Reds in a thriller. Meaghan Souza, Lauren Zaremba, Courtney Cavanaugh, Amanda Keane, Robin Hollinback and Sara Alornado all had multiple hit games which included 2 doubles each by Lauren and Robin.

The Reds hitting attack was anchored by Jessica Lees, Chelsey Westerberg, Kristina Lees, Allana Ciampa, Hayley Robarge, and Rachel Grabar who put up 7 runs in a strong 2nd inning getting right back into the game.

The big defensive inning came in the final 5th inning when the Phillies held the Reds to only one run. Defensively strong for the Phillies were Sarah Luz, Charlene Sullivan, Michelle Flippi, Danielle Parisi and Alyssa Cappuccio.

The Reds had a strong defensive 3rd inning holding the Phillies to only 2 runs. They were led by Kelly Gormley, Dasha, Kristen Esdale, Lisamarie Dioro and Jessica McSheedy. In the end the Phillies came away with a well deserved team effort for the win.

Wilmington Brewers 16, Tewksbury Pirates 10

The Wilmington Brewers continued their success against Tewskbury teams with a 16-10 win over the Pirates at Glen Road.

Although out-hit by the Pirates, the Brewers took advantage of Pirate pitching with walks, stolen bases, wild pitches, and passed balls.

Twice Brewer hitters struck out but reached base when the catcher couldn't handle the pitch cleanly. Jacqui Lyman and Lisa Rooker both pitched very well for the Brewers. Lyman didn't walk anyone and had four strikeouts, including striking out the side in the 2nd inning. Rooker came on in the 4th and promptly put the side down 1-2-3.

She also demonstrated her fielding skills with 5 assists from the mound. Brewer defense was up and down but when it was working, it was excellent. Brittany Schuh, at secondbase, had the highlight of the night in the 6th inning when she quickly ranged to her right to scoop up a ball heading into centerfield and fired to 1B Erica Savage for the out.

Back in the 3rd inning, 1B Charlotte Jensen got an unassisted double play when she caught a popup and then caught the runner, who had moved too far off the bag. Offensively for the Brewers, Dawn DiCiccio and Katelyn Hayes each had two hits, with Hayes driving in two runs.

In the 6th inning Lisa Russell beat one of the Tewksbury fireballers by laying down a perfect bunt. Utilizing her speed, Russell beat the throw and then advanced to 2B when the ball got away. She then moved to 3B and scored on two consecutive wild pitches. Russell also had three stolen bases in the game.

Royals 18, Brewers 10

The Royals came back from a 10-2 deficit to defeat the Brewers 18-10. Scoring five runs in the 4th inning and three in the 5th, the Royals tied the Brewers 10-10. They then scored eight runs in the 7th inning to run away with the victory.

The big hitters for the Royals were Nicole Bockus and Michelle White with four hits each. White had two doubles and a triple with six RBI's. Bockus had a double and triple with four RBI's. Bridget Griffin, Tatum McNally, Erin Crowley, and Kristyn McNally each had two hits with Griffin registering a double and triple. Tatum McNally scored five times in the game. The Brewers pounded out 17 hits. Julie Gorman went 4-for-4.

Brittany Schuh and Charlotte Jensen had three hits each. Ceara Dembowski and Katelyn Hayes chipped in with two hits a piece. Even with twenty-eight total runs being scored, there were some fine defensive plays for both teams. Crowley, in leftfield for the Royals, made a nice catch on a sinking liner. Ashley White's quick reaction in rightfield enabled her to throw out a hitter at 1B.

Samantha Palermo showcased a smooth glove at 3B and Griffin made some acrobatic plays behind the plate. For the Brewers, Julie Gorman made some good plays at both shortstop and catcher. Schuh played another steady game at 2B.

The Royals' Kristyn McNally and the Brewers' Jacqui Lyman both pitched very well with McNally allowing only four hits, two walks, and no runs. Lyman allowed only two runs and walked only one.

The Wilmington U-11 White Lacrosse braved the heat Sunday in their last season game. They will be part of close to 120 Wilmington players who will now meet teams from all over the state at the 4-day lacrosse Jamboree. # Under 12 B girls soccer team takes on North Reading

The Wilmington Lady Wildcats U-12B team traveled to North Reading this past holiday weekend to play a make-up game on Memorial Day.

The girls showed right away that they came to play as the ball was moved into the N. Reading zone with some of the best passing of the season as midfielders Mikayla Visconti, Ryanne Newhouse, Jessica Griffin and Katie Bray controlled and then sent the ball to forwards Lauren Azevedo, Lauren Smith, and Kelly McGowen who sent shot after shot at the N. Reading net.

The first goal of the game came from a beautiful pass from Michaela D'Ambrosio, received by Kerrianne Marino who sent a perfectly timed pass to forward Lauren Azevedo who blasted a shot at the N. Reading net, the shot was stopped by the keeper but a determined Lauren Azevedo showed a great second effort by going after the rebound and sending the ball between the pipes.

The Lady wildcat defense helped hold onto the lead as keeper Emily Schuh made many great saves and in one stand-out play fullback Victoria Beck saved what would have been the tying goal by N. Reading as three N.Reading offensive players swarmed in front of our net sending off shot after shot, Victoria raced in from the wing, stole the ball and cleared it out of the Wilmington zone. Sweeper Cara Kusa once again showed her talent as she moved in and stopped all attempts to get near the Wilmington net. Stoppers Kerry Murphy and fullback Kelly Dicicco shined once again as the pair broke up many N. Reading drives and then sent the ball rocketing out of the zone and over the heads of their opponents.

The second half saw the always tough and reliable Courtney Cavanaugh take over as keeper. Forwards Ashley Walsh and Brett Duffy got the momentum rolling again with some great footwork to get into the N. reading zone, and the Forward Kelly McGowan showed her stuff as she stole the ball from a N. Reading player and blasted a shot past their keeper giving the Wildcats a 2-0 lead and that is how it would stay, the girls improve their record to 6 wins, 0 losses and 1 tie.

The Wilmington Lady Wildcats U-12B team traveled to Westford on Saturday, June 4th to play their last away game of the season. The players, Coaches and parents were all glad to see their teammate Katie Blanch back on the field after her injury, welcome back Katie.

The Westford team was not going to allow our girls an easy game and that is how it would play out. Both teams kept the pressure on, Keeper Emily Schuh was tested early and often but she was steady and sure in net turning away the Westford offense.

Forwards Lauren Azevedo and Kerrianne Marino kept the Westford keeper busy with shot after shot on net. The lady midfielders Katie Blanch, Katie Bray, Brett Duffy and Jessica Griffin had to work extra hard to keep up with the Westford offense and to beat the heat of the day. Unfortunately Westford struck first on a breakaway and they took a 1-0 lead at the end of the first half. Going into the second half with keeper Courtney Cavanaugh in net and the rock solid defensive line of sweeper Cara Kusa and stopper Kerry Murphy, and fullbacks Victoria Beck and Kelly Dicicco the Wildcats knew that the defense would stop any attempt to score and it was up to the Wilmington Offense to get us on the scoreboard.

Midfielder Ryanne Newhouse and Mikayla Visconti stopped Westford cold and moved the ball up to forwards Lauren Smith and Ashley Walsh who maneuvered into Westford territory, and then Michaela D'Ambrosio sent a blast past the Westford keeper tying the game at 1-1, and that is how it would end in an 1-1 tie, giving the Lady Wildcats a 6 win, 0 loss and 2 ties record with 2 games left in the season the Lady Wildcats are in contention for a trip to the Commissioners cup.

Under 10-3 girls host Westford

The Wilmington Lady Wildcats Under 10-3 soccer team hosted Westford in a late day make-up game. The girls showed right away that they came to play and put the pressure on early as the ball was quickly moved into the Westford zone. Left forward Taylor Perella wasted no time firing a hard shot into the far corner of the net to score Wilmington's first goal after receiving a beautifully laid pass by center mid Christa Brent.

Wilmington forwards Rachel McLaren and Cassandra Grasso utilized their speed and superb ball handling skills to wear down the Westford defense and keep them backpedaling. Center mid Carli Brent fought hard to win the ball and feed the forward line. Wilmington's offense demonstrated skillful footwork and precision passing to set up many scoring opportunities. Right forward Alexandra Bischoff then stole a goal kick and hustled down the side to send a solid shot into the net giving Wilmington a 2-0 lead.

Wilmington's defense has been a force to be reckoned with this season only giving up 2 goals the entire season thus far. Powerhouse defenders Rachael Mara and Kaitlyn Curley shined as the pair broke up many Westford drives clearing the ball and sending it rocketing over the heads of their opponents. Goalkeeper Erin Hurley was phenomenal in net once again and kept Westford from scoring any goals in the first half.

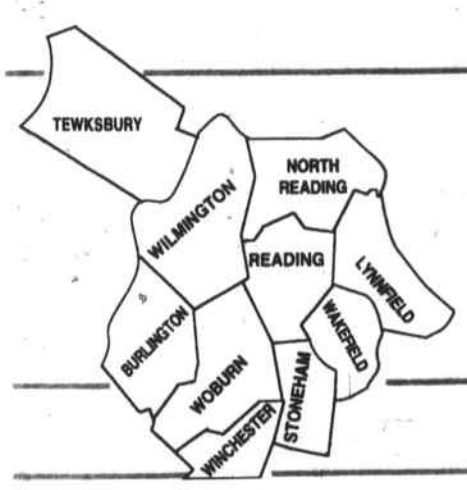

Westford picked up the pace in the second half but once again Wilmington's iron-like defense was successful at keeping the ball away from the net. Goalkeeper Kaitlyn Cowden stayed tough and made some truly incredible saves. Defenders Caroline Robarge and Erin Hurley solidified the area in front of Kaitlyn and the game ended with a 2-0 win for the Wildcats.

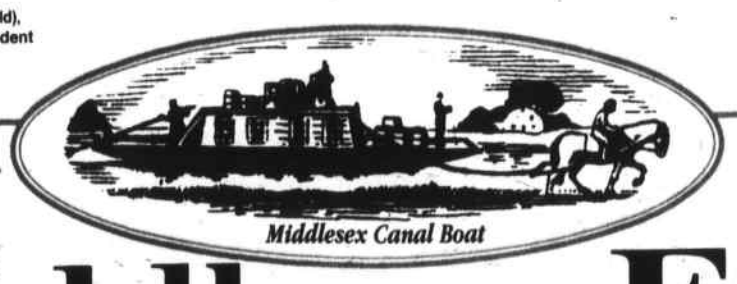

The Wilmington Lady Wildcats then traveled to Wakefield on a hot , sunny Saturday morning to face a tough opponent. This game proved to be a battle and both teams fought hard. Wilmington's offense continued to gain momentum as the play progressed and there were many solid shots taken on the net. Wilmington's rock solid defense held back the Wakefield offense and the game ended with a 0-0 tie. The Wildcats held strong during a tough match demonstrating the determination of this young team.

The Lady Cats continue to be successful and now have an impressive 6-1-1 record. The Wildcats look forward to playing Westford this Saturday.

Bob Shure: Creating, recreating and preserving artworks seen 'round the world' from his Woburn studio

By DOUG WOOD-BOYLE

Being creative, while still staying with in the designs of his mentors and the masters and meeting the needs of those that commission his work are challenges that keeps Woburn sculptor Bob Shure at his best as he develops an international reputation of his own.

"Creation depends on the job," Shure said. "Sometimes a committee will leave everything totally up to me. Other times I work with a committee that is very specific with what they want, so I have to work with in the framework."

This is not a problem for Shure, who added, "To me it is more like problem solving. I like working with people. I like being the creative person who can express the ideas they want. To me it's more of a challenge."

Examples of how Shure has met the different challenges are on display throughout this country in churches, school campuses, museums and in both Downtown Woburn and Boston's Downtown Crossing area.

"With all my work, it is never done, but it is finished."
Bob Shure

The sculptor, whose Skylight Studio is on Salem Street donated two pieces to the city where he does his work. The first is the Turn of the Century Tanner Family that adorns the clock across from Woburn Common and the second is his copy of the Indian Statue that is on the banks of Horn Pond.

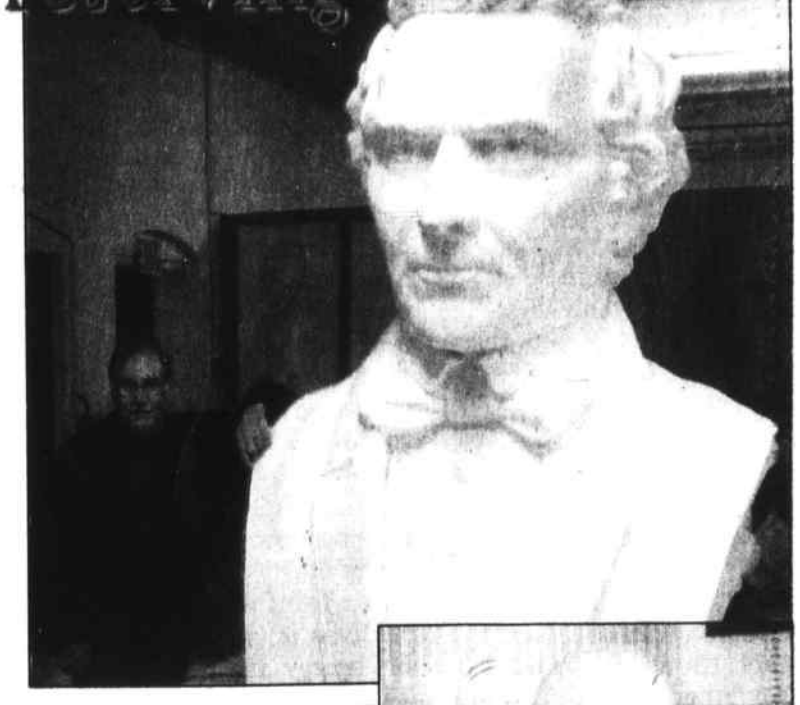

At present he is putting the finishing touches on a huge bust of naval architect and builder Donald McKay, designer and builder of the "Flying Cloud and several other clipper ships that allowed east coast ports such as Salem to participate in a thriving trade with China during the 19th century. When the bronze statue is finished it will be placed in a park being built in East Boston on the site of what is believed to be McKay's shipyard.

Shure had the enviable opportunity of being able to take over a thriving statuary business from his mentors Adio DiBiccari and Acangelo Cascieri as the pair prepared for retirement. He had started as an apprentice with the pair in 1972 and 14 years later, in 1985, he took over the studio.

"They did work all over the world," Shure said. "They did a lot of work for the Catholic Church.

"When I first started with them I did a lot of work for the cathedral in Washington, D.C.

"They also did a lot of portraits (busts or full figure sculpture), architectural sculpture and public monuments."

BOB SHURE STANDING NEXT TO HIS BUST OF NAVAL ARCHITECT AND BUILDER DONALD MCKAY, designer and builder of the "Flying Cloud" and several other clipper ships during the 19th century. At right is a bust of the 4th President of the United States James Madison which Shure created for Madison's country plantation Montpelier in central Virginia. At left is the Irish Famine Memorial, by Shure located in downtown Boston.

Shure recalled, "In 1989 I closed in Boston because my two teachers were retiring and we were being surrounded by Northeastern University."

Shure, a native of Burlington, now lives in Wilmington, and wanted to move his studio in this area. He picked Woburn because the location is convenient to many of the suppliers who provide him with the wood, plaster, clay and various other materials he uses in his artwork.

On any given day, a visitor to his 1200 square foot studio may see Shure and his 12 professional staff members working on projects ranging from original creations to restorations, preservation or conservation of classic pieces.

Presently Shure and his crews are working on preserving several pieces that are on display in Newport, Rhode Island. The work is being done in conjunction with the Newport Preservation Society and is being done on marble sculptures and fountains.

Over the years, Shure has made copies of historical places such as the Washington Monument the Old State House in Boston and others. Copies of these pieces are then mass-produced for sale in the gift shops to help raise funds for the preservation of the original buildings.

"Basically we do anything relative tc sculpture, whether it is creating, reproducing or restoring," Shure said.

Shure enjoys working on the classic pieces as much as he does creating his own pieces. Every time he works on a classic piece he finds a new idea that will add to his knowledge and creativity.

"It helps my own creativity to do work on classic pieces," Shure said. "I work within the figurative tradition.

"What helps my own work is to be able to refer back to the great works of the past. When I want to be inspired I look at Michelangelo and the other great artists."

Shure explodes the myth that sculpture starts with a lump of clay. In fact there are several steps before the clay mold comes into play.

"The first thing is design and composition," Shure said. "That is easier said than done."

As part of his design stage, Shure has to know that the finished piece will fit and be complementary to the site where it will be placed.

"A design done to be surrounded by a building is done one way,' he explained, "for an open field it is done differently."

The drawn designs help each of the 12 trained artists working on the project with their specialties keep a focus on what the finished project needs to look like. It also helps the commissioning

Cinderella Man

MOVIE:
"CINDERELLA MAN"
GRADE: ***

Director Ron Howard is a sentimental man, a character trait he has brought to the forefront with "Cinderella Man", though he lets the film get a bit gooey toward the end. The film features Rusell Crowe as boxer James J. Braddock, so as expected it's flawlessly crafted, superbly acted and intelligently written.

We know how the story ends, a problem Howard showed he had no problem overcoming in his film 'Apollo 13'. Braddock was a real-life prizefighter who came from behind to serve as a symbol of hope to folks who were down on their luck during the Depression . That includes his own family, for whom he's able to provide a comfortable home in suburban New Jersey at the film's start.

But as Howard shows with a seamless shift in time and tenor, Braddock is forced to move them into a run-down basement apartment when his fights and fortunes run out four years later. He now must compete for daily work on the docks while wife Mae (Renee Zellweger in full feisty mode) takes in sewing and waters the milk for their three kids.

Then Braddock's former manager, Joe Gould (Paul Giamatti), comes calling with a proposal. A boxer had to drop out of a fight at the last minute, and Gould has finagled a way for Braddock (even though he's lost his license) to get back in the ring against an up-and-coming star.

There is, of course, the obligatory training montage leading up to the bout itself. Having been away for so long, Braddock is barely expected to last a couple of rounds. He ends up winning, which sets up a heavyweight championship fight against the monstrous Max Baer (a convincingly slimy Craig Bierko) who has literally killed a couple of his previous opponents.

The best performance, comes from Giamatti as a man who puts his considerable energy and resourcefulness into maintaining the appearance that he's still thriving financially.

SHORTTAKES

MOVIE:
"MADAGASCAR"
GRADE: ***

The latest computer-animated extravaganza from DreamWorks is certainly an improvement over last year's desperate "Shark Tale," but it's not as crisp start-to-finish as the "Shrek" movies. And it falls into the same trap as so many films of this genre (with the notable exception of "The Incredibles"): In an effort to seem hip and high-energy with a litany of pop-culture references, the writing (from a team of four) instead comes off as simple and lazy.

In the span of a 30-minute television show like "The Family Guy," this approach that can be hilariously effective. Over an entire feature film _ even one that's just 86 minutes long _ it feels like a stretch.

So when Alex (voiced by Ben Stiller), Marty (an exuberant Chris Rock), Melman the hypochondriac giraffe (a perfectly cast David Schwimmer) and Gloria the no-nonsense hippo (Jada Pinkett Smith) leave the safety of the zoo and inadvertently end up on the shores of Madagascar, there are allusions to everything from "American Beauty" and "Chariots of Fire" to "Planet of the Apes" and "The Twilight Zone." One joke even combines riffs on "Cast Away" and "Caddyshack" in the same breath.

Some of the gags in the film from director-writers Eric Darnell ("Antz") and Tom McGrath ("The Ren & Stimpy Show") are admittedly laugh-out-loud funny. Others fall flat. All of them, of course, are intended for the adults in the audience and will sail right over the tiny heads of the kids, who will be captivated by the colorful, hyperactive characters no matter what.

MOVIE:
"STAR WARS EPISODE III: REVENGE OF THE SITH"
GRADE: ***

The Force is strong with "Episode III : Revenge of the Sith," the sixth and final piece in George Lucas' galactic saga, which represents a return to the ideas and the spirit that made his original "Star Wars" a hit 28 years ago.

The circle is now complete, and much of the film's joy comes from watching these familiar names and events fall into place.

It is enormously satisfying to see young Anakin Skywalker (Hayden Christensen) teeter along the edge that separates good and evil, and to see what finally pushes the would-be Chosen One over to the dark side of the Force.

It's a wonderful, small discovery when Anakin receives the name Darth Vader once he finally swears his allegiance to Chancellor Palpatine, who reveals himself here as Darth Sidious, a Sith master and the eventual evil Emperor.

But the moment we've all been waiting for is one that simply must be experienced in a packed theater: when the mask goes on and the helmet comes down and Anakin takes his first raspy breath as Darth Vader in all his glory.

The symbolism is powerful to behold, especially

Pearl show and restringing event at Elyse Jewelers

On Thursday, June 16, Elyse Fine Jewelers and Gemologists will be celebrating the month of the pearl by hosting a free pearl show and re-stringing event called Sushi, Sake and Pearls.

From 6:00 p.m. through 9:00 p.m., locals can have their pearl necklaces and bracelets cleaned, inspected and checked for defects such as a soon-to-be-broken clasp, all free of charge. In many cases, customers can have their pearls re-strung for free with the purchase of a new clasp while they wait.

There will also be an extensive display of new pearl jewelry, including Japanese Akoya, natural South Sea and Tahitian pearls.

Locals are encouraged to stop by and view these exquisite jewelry pieces while sampling traditional Japanese teas, sushi and sake.

All pearl jewelry will be specially priced for this event.

Also, a representative from the Crown Imperial Pearl Company will be on-hand to answer questions concerning pearls and re-stringing. The Imperial Pearl Company has been in business since 1917 and is widely acknowledged as one of the worlds leading pearl companies.

The pearl is a true jewel of the sea, owing its beauty to the creative forces of nature.

The Crown Imperial Pearl is Japan's 5,000-year-old symbol of wealth, happiness and longevity.

All are invited to the June 16 Pearl Show at Elyse Fine Jewelers and Gemologists, located at 95 Main Street in Reading. For more information or to RSVP call 617-262-9700, extension 550.

TOWN AND COUNSEL

Revisiting Tewksbury

"The Tewksbury Historical Society hosted a Discovery workshop during which they attempted to identify old photographs of Tewksbury," notes the "Tewksbury Town Crier."

"The event was held at the Tewksbury Senior Center.

"The Society will display pictures from their archives with hopes that members of the public will be able to assist in identifying people and places. These are never-before-seen photos. Even recognizing the age of an automobile, the background seen in a picture, the type of clothing people are wearing, or even the landscape may help to correctly categorize the photographs.

"David Marcus, President of the Tewksbury Historical Society said, 'We are calling it the Discovery workshop, because we are trying to discover what the pictures are about, or who is in them.'

"The photographs were obtained by the Historical Society through donations from residents.

"In addition to identifying photographs, these events always become an enjoyable social event.

"'We find people like to come and talk about Tewksbury and see their friends and stimulate talk about Tewksbury,' Marcus said.

"The Tewksbury Historical Society plans to produce a book within a year or two which will focus on the history of Tewksbury. The book will be made up of approximately 75 to 80 percent pictures and approximately 20 to 25 percent prose.

"In addition to its focus on the twentieth century, the book will cover the founding of Tewksbury, the schools and possibly Tewksbury's involvement in the Revolutionary War.

"'We wanted a book people could look at to use as a research tool and mainly so people can look at how Tewksbury used to be in the early 1900's,' Marcus said. 'Part of our mission is to educate people on the history of Tewksbury and this fits within our mission.'

"According to Warren Carey, Vice President of the Tewksbury Historical Society, the carnation industry and Tewksbury's former status as the 'Carnation Capital of the World' will be covered. Some of the other historical events likely to be included are the Novitiate (now the oblate retirement residence on Chandler Street) burning, the explosion in South Lowell, which at the time was part of Tewksbury, and the gas explosion on Chapman Road.

"According to Carey, Tewksbury's Congregational Church played a vital role in the history of the town.

"'The only reason Tewksbury still exists is because of the Congregational Church, and if people don't know that then they don't know the history of Tewksbury,' Carey said. 'People say Separation of Church and State; well where do they think the town meetings were held....'"

Developing jobs locally

"A little over two years ago, Massachusetts' State Treasurer Timothy Cahill would drag himself out of bed at 4 a.m. on occasion for work," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"But as a few dozen members of the Woburn Business Association (WBA) found out while they munched on breakfast Danish at the Woburn Country Club, Cahill's morning routine has been somewhat altered since assuming his new position.

"'Now that I'm in state government, 7:30 a.m. for breakfast sounds like an early start. So I apologize for being late,' joked a tardy Cahill to the crowd's amusement.

"Addressing the WBA and a handful of city officials during the business group's second monthly breakfast meeting at the Woburn Country Club's Fairways, Cahill focused his 45-minute speech on the state's job growth, School Building Assistance program and lottery and pension systems.

"'I thought he was very knowledgeable. He seems like he has a handle on a number of things, and he wears a lot of hats,' said Paul Meaney, the WBA's Executive Director.

"'I think a lot of times in the government sector, you don't see officials reaching out to the other side, to the when compared to the horrendously disappointing Episodes I and II. In retrospect, the first two "Star Wars" prequels seem even more useless, with their stilted dialogue and their numbing, CGI-infused clone battles.

Lucas wisely has placed the emphasis this time on elaborate lightsaber duels between Anakin and mentor Obi-Wan Kenobi (Ewan McGregor) against the Sith lord Count Dooku (Christopher Lee), and ultimately between Anakin and Obi-Wan themselves. Some of the biggest thrills come from tiny Yoda, the Jedi master who's at the height of his powers here.

Lucas' writing still leaves something to be desired, though, especially during the exchanges between Anakin and his secret bride, Senator Padme Amidala (Natalie Portman), who announces in Episode III that she's pregnant (with twins we've come to know as Luke and Leia in Episode IV, the original "Star Wars").

His love for Padme, though, is partly the inspiration for Anakin's conversion. Not to give too much away, but he becomes convinced that Padme is in danger, and the only way to save her is through the powers that come with dark-side membership.

He's actually just being manipulated by Palpatine/Darth Sidious, who wants to turn the Galactic Republic into his own Empire and sees him as a malleable apprentice, especially at a time when Anakin isn't getting the respect and authority he craves from the Jedi Council.

It's also a visually stunning film, though. Lucas uses the digital technology to far greater advantage than he did in the first two prequels, which too often had the glossy, detached look of a video game. Crisp daylight streams through the floor-to-ceiling windows of Padme's apartment, and the cityscapes consist of silvery skyscrapers and golden sunsets. Even Chewbacca and his Wookiee buddies look lifelike as they scamper in battle across the beaches and jungles of the planet Kashyyyk.

Elected (Burlington)

"Thomas F. Murphy, Jr., was chosen unanimously by his colleagues to be chairman of the School Committee for the next year, his fourth stint as chair," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Murphy is in his 11th year on the School Committee and his current term expires in 2007. He was also chairman from 1997-1998, 1999-2000, and 2003-2004.

"Board member Christine Monaco nominated Murphy, it was seconded by Stephen Nelson, and the motion passed unanimously.

"'I would like to thank my fellow members for their confidence in me,' said Murphy. 'I look forward to working with them next year.'

"Murphy then presented a commemorative gavel to Nelson, last year's chairman.

"'I would like to thank my fellow School Committee members for working so hard this past year and helping me do my job as chair,' said Nelson.

"Sharon Sotiros was unanimously voted in as vice-chairwoman."

Welcome (Lynnfield)

"The Middle School hosted a reception for incoming principal Stephen Ralston in the middle school cafeteria," notes the "Lynnfield Villager."

"The event was sponsored by the Middle School and the Parent-Teacher Organization. Refreshments were served.

"Ralston is replacing Doug Russell, who will retire this month after a 35-year career as an educator in the Lynnfield school system. Ralston, 36, is a Burlington resident. He is currently the assistant principal at the Jonas Clarke Middle School in Lexington. He has held that position since July of 2001. In the six-and-a-half years prior to that, Ralston was a teacher at the Chenery Middle School in Belmont. That followed two years as a lab instructor in the Zoology Department at Miami University of Ohio in 1991 and 1992, which coincided with the completion of his Master of Arts in teaching from Miami."

business side. So I was very satisfied with him and I hope he comes back again,' Meaney added.

"According to Cahill, as a family man who once watched as his father struggled to support his family through three years of unemployment, the government does have some responsibility to ensure job stability.

"And for the State Treasurer, that obligation not only includes ensuring that state government remains fiscally fit through slashing and raising taxes, it also means promoting revenue generation through business growth...."

Agreeing to disagree about Mishawum

"Both sides of the issue agreed to disagree over the issue of using the Mishawum Commuter Rail Station property for any part of a new I-93/I-95 interchange at a session of the Tri-Community Highway Action Group (THAG)," notes the Woburn edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"In the meantime, the MBTA, which owns the property, is proceeding with a Request for Proposals process which will lead to the sale of the parking lot on the site.

"Officials from Woburn, including Mayor John Curran, are adamant that the property not be used in any way for a new interchange to replace the existing one at the Stoneham/Woburn/Reading town lines...."

LAUGH CLUB STARTING IN WAKEFIELD

The Wakefield Laugh Club will hold its first meeting on Wednesday, June 8th from 7 to 8 pm at the Unitarian Universalist Church, 326 Main St. Led by local resident Sue Herz, a certified Laugh Club Leader, the group will meet on Wednesday evenings on a weekly basis. All are welcome and regular attendance is not required.

The unique concept of Laughter Yoga was discovered in 1995 by Dr. Madan Kataria, a physician in Mumbai, India. It has since grown into a world wide movement with more than 2500 clubs in India, USA, Canada, Australia, UK, France, Germany, Italy, Belgium, Switzerland, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Hungary, Ireland, Netherlands, Finland, Singapore, Indonesia, Malaysia, Vietnam, Taiwan, Hong Kong and Dubai.

Dr. Kataria, realizing that laughter truly can be "the best medicine," started working with a small group of people and discovered that anyone can laugh for 15-20 minutes without depending upon a great sense of humor, jokes or comedy.

What happens at a Laughter Club session?

Led by a qualified laugh club leader, members take part in activities that combine laughter exercises (simulated laughter) and yoga breathing, which turns into real laughter when practiced in a group.

Participation in a laughter club encourages playfulness, laughter, social connection and a balance of mind, body and spirit.

To learn more about Laughter Yoga, see www.laughterforlife.org and www.joyofkidding.com. For Wakefield Laugh Club details, contact Sue Herz at sueherz@rcn.com or 781-246-8940.

Bob Shure from S-1

client visualize their idea before the actual work is started.

Once the design sketches are done, then a clay model is built and scaled to size. This allows the sculptor to create a skeleton out of wood for the full size clay negative, which is used to create the mold for the plaster casting.

It is called a negative as everything comes out in the opposite of how the finished bronze will appear. The plaster, used as a mold for the bronze is called a positive.

According to Shure, the clay mold and the sketch work is the creative end of his art. Making the skeleton and the final casts are "engineering feats."

"It involves heavy duty wood-working and metal welding to construct the skeleton,"

Shure said. "It also involves a good working knowledge of mathematics and proportions."

He also stressed, "It is impossible to work with clay and not work from a model. "Working with thousands of pounds of clay, if the skeleton is not right, can be a dangerous situation."

The length of time for the process depends a lot on the size of the finished piece. According to Shure, some pieces can be done in a few months and others can take up to three years.

However, due to time constraints, Shure was able to produce the piece in Boston's Downtown Crossing within a year. Every day hundreds of people can be seen taking time out of their work day and other activities to admire the pathos and hope that are displayed in "The Irish Famine" showing refugees from Ireland arriving in this country, while others are left on the shores of the homeland to starve during the potato famine of the early 20th century.

Like any good artist, Shure has to decide when to stop work on a project and let the chips fall where they may. He said, "With all my work, it is never done, but it is finished."

Shure is also working on "The Fallen Firefighters Memorial, which will be placed at the State House on completion. This work has been commissioned by the 100 Club, which is made up of fire chiefs and other supporters of firefighters who have fallen in the line of service.

Choosing a high efficiency air conditioner

Homeowners who get hot under the collar from high energy bills are paying more attention to the efficiency level of the air conditioners inside their home.

One company, Coleman, has responded to consumer demands with its Echelon series, which features a product family of central air conditioners, heat pumps, and furnaces which feature 12, 13 and 15+ SEER levels.

SEER stands for the appliance's Seasonal Energy Efficiency Ratio and the higher the SEER level, the better more efficient the item.

The outdoor units also host a variety of consumer-driven features such as hail protection, a rustproof composite pan, low sound and vibration and the exclusive WhisperDrive two-stage compressor - all packed inside a sleek, contemporary titanium-hued cabinet.

Of interest to consumers who like the outdoors, is the fact that Americans have trusted Coleman products for more than 100 years.

Coleman began designing home heating and cooling equipment in the late 1920's. Today, there is a full line of energy-efficient home comfort systems that continue the Coleman tradition of quality and reliability.

Studies show that today's homeowners not only shop for heating and air conditioning equipment with contemporary design, but they also want equipment that promises quiet, efficient and environmentally-friendly operation.

To learn more, visit the Coleman company website at www.colemanac.com/consumer.asp

Oh no! My computer crashed

Today's computers are more than just word processors like they were in the past; we surf the web, exchange e-mail, burn CD's, shop online, and view photos - just to name a few.

Just like a car, computers need regular maintenance or they'll break down and stall, costing both time and money to repair.

To avoid these problems, consider the following tips to prevent computer crashes from iolo technologies, developers of System Mechanic utility software.

First, make sure your data files are backed up so you'll still have access to the files in the event that they become corrupted or otherwise unaccessible on your computer..

Also, save the original CD's that were used to install the programs which are on your computer. If you downloaded programs from the internet, save the original download (before installation) to a disk or CD.

Obsolete, temporary junk files and internet browser history takes up critical space on your computer's hard drive and that's why

Housing market very strong in first quarter of 2005

Severe weather during the first three months of 2005 failed to put a chill in the demand for housing this winter, as attractive mortgage rates, steady job growth and an increase in the supply of homes for sale drew a large number of buyers into the Massachusetts housing market in the first quarter, according to data issued by the Massachusetts Association of Realtors.

Condominium sales were especially strong, setting a new first quarter record, while detached single-family home sales rose to their third highest level on record for a January to March period.

The healthy sales pace led to a sharp price gain in the detached home and condo markets. This has been the 46th consecutive quarter that prices have risen over the previous year's level.

The MAR report shows that in the first quarter, sales of detached single-family homes increased 5.8 percent over the past year, from 8,236 homes sold in the first three months of 2004 to 8,714 sold during the first three months of 2005.

In the condominium market, sales rose even more dramatically, climbing 35.4 percent from 3,032 units sold in the first quarter of 2004 to a record 4,105 units sold during the same time period of 2005.

This marks the seventh consecutive quarter that sales of existing single-family homes have risen, while condo sales have improved for eight straight quarters.

Eganville has room for the whole family

By Associated Designs

The Eganville can easily accommodate multigenerational families, along with those that include teenagers, or just want space to spread out. The room to the right of the foyer can house an aging parent, or serve as a den or home office. The shop, behind the garage, could be an art studio, workout space, or rehearsal area.

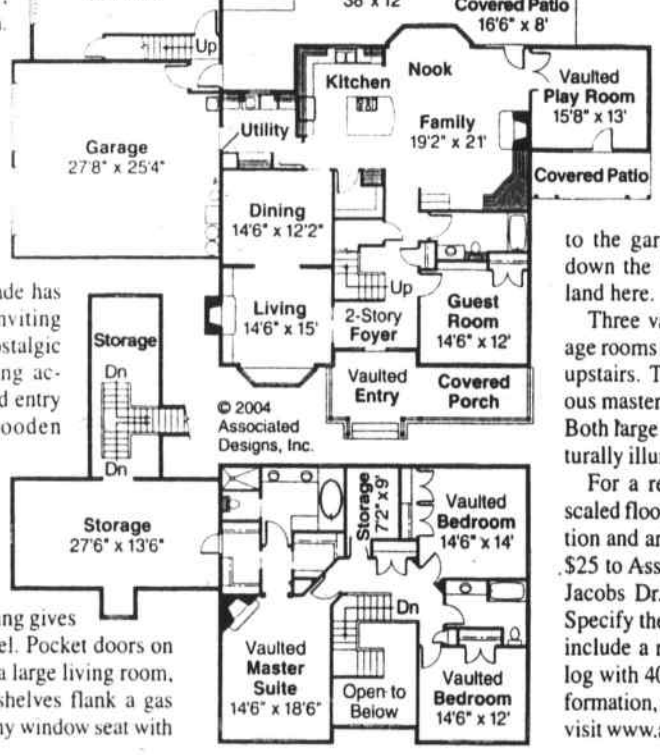

This plan has over 3,000 sq. ft. of living space, plus a thousand more in the storage and shop, plus a two-car garage.

Its front facade has an engaging, inviting appearance. Nostalgic wooden detailing accents the vaulted entry porch, and wooden shutters highlight the wide assortment of Craftsman-style windows.

In the foyer a two-story ceiling gives an expansive feel. Pocket doors on the left open to a large living room, where stacked shelves flank a gas fireplace. A sunny window seat with storage below nestles into the window bay. In the rear wall, an arched opening leads into the dining room, which links with the kitchen.

The kitchen is open to a family room expanded by a bayed nook. Notable features are: a gas fireplace, entertainment center, and built-in desk. Double doors on the right open into a vaulted play room.

Abundant light spills into the kitchen and nook through skylights. A curved-front conversation bar rims a large work island, and the walk-in pantry is exceptionally roomy. Laundry appliances are nearby in an efficient utility room connected to the garage. Clothes dropped down the upstairs laundry chute land here.

Top e-mail protection mistakes to look for

Protecting an e-mail account from spam, viruses, hackers and inappropriate content can affect the responsiveness of a company's system, the productivity of its employees and its financial and legal positions.

To help, here's an overview of some of the most common mistakes that companies make when attempting to protect their computers and e-mail.

• Desktop software is their only protection. Desktop software should really be considered as the last line of defense. It's controlled by the end-user and can be disabled or not updated frequently enough.

Furthermore, the internal network can be burdened by letting unwanted spam and virus traffic flow into a company computer and all the way to the desktop before it's filtered out.

• No outgoing protection. Many viruses can get sent from a company to their business partners, suppliers and even their customers. Content filtering can reduce the risk, prevent outbound spam, avoid sensitive information leaks and filter out inappropriate content such as profanity and harassment.

• No traffic reporting or recording. Reporting on messaging traffic is critical for businesses in order to identify large volume e-mail senders, determine if/when employees are talking to competitors, and other forms of abuse.

In some industries, reporting and recording are vital for regulatory compliance and addressing the concerns of corporate liability.

• Security software is running on insecure platforms. Widely-used operating systems like Windows can be easily hacked, so it's important to have a solid base that's resistant to hackers.

• Effectiveness and reliability. The e-mail security solution needs to offer high "catch rates" to stop spam and virus threats, while also delivering virtually zero false-positives so that no critical e-mail data gets accidentally discarded.

Additionally, the system needs built-in reliability and redundancy for recovery from power loss and to ensure that no critical messages are lost or corrupted.

For more information about e-mail solutions, contact Mirapoint by calling 1-800-937-8118.

STONEHAM THEATRE

Whodunit? Audiences at Stoneham Theatre will be on the edge of their seats when Agatha Christie's classic murder mystery The Mousetrap takes the stage, playing Thursday, through Sunday, June 19. In the world's longest running play, Christie has created an atmosphere of shuddering suspense and a brilliantly intricate plot where murder lirks around every corner.

The most famous crime writer of all time, Agatha Christie's gripping mystery "The Mousetrap" has been running nonstop in London for over 50 years, longer than any other play or musical in history. Set in the 1940s, this crime drama centers around a young couple who inherit a roomy old house and decide to turn it into a bed and breakfast.

They don't know their guests, and learn how little they may even know about each other, when the house is isolated by a storm and the phone lines go down. One of the guests is killed and the only possible suspects are in the house. Minute by minute plot twists and turns thrill the audience as they find out who died, who done it and why.

Performances are on Wednesday and Thursday evenings at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. with matinees Saturdays at 4 p.m and Sundays at 2 p.m.

Ticket, priced at $32 for adults, $27 for seniors and $16 for students (under 18 or with valid college I D), are on sale at the Stoneham Theatre Box Office, 395 Main Street Stoneham. online at www.stonehamtheatre.org or by calling 781-279-2200.

Housing from S-11

"The anticipated slowdown in the housing market has yet to materialize," said MAR President Maggie Tomkiewicz, of M. MacDonald Real Estate in Dartmouth.

"Even with the poor weather we experienced this winter, a jump in mortgage rates in March, and ongoing concerns over higher energy costs, we've seen no real decline in buyer demand. If anything, activity has picked-up in recent weeks as mortgage rates hit six percent and more homes have come on the market."

The fact that the state's economy has added jobs for the past seven months in a row has also helped to boost buyers' confidence.

"As the unemployment rate has fallen, job security is improved and that's given many people the confidence to go out and buy big ticket items," Tomkiewicz added.

Across the state, sales of detached single-family homes rose in all but two regions from January through March, with Central Massachusetts (Worcester County) and greater Boston sustaining the most significant year-to-year sales gains at 17.8 percent and 9 percent, respectively.

In the condo market, sales increased in all seven regions of the state, with double-digit sales growth reported in all regions except the southeastern portion of the state, where sales rose 6.9 percent over the figures from 12 months ago.

The most significant sales gains were seen on the South Shore and in greater Boston, where sales improved 48.1 percent and 41.2 percent, respectively.

Sales also increased by 30 percent or more in the western part of Massachusetts and in Worcester County.

The surge in condo sales is the result of both economic and demographic factors, according to industry observers.

"For entry-level buyers, the condo market's appeal remains its affordability, but it's the demands of baby-boomers and active seniors that has triggered the current condo craze," Tomkiewicz said.

Condominiums tend to offer a smaller floor plan and maintenance-free lifestyles which are typically desired by those who are looking to downsize or purchase a vacation home.

Additionally, with their children grown, many baby-boomers are selling their suburban homes and returning to the city.

"In several cities, the conversion of old mills, schools and churches into condominiums is being driven in large part by aging boomers who are looking to return to the communities in which they grew up," she noted.

From the months of January through March, the average rate for a 30-year fixed mortgage was 5.85 percent, up just one-tenth of a point from 12 months ago. However, between the start and end of the quarter, the average for a 30 -year fixed mortgage rose on quarter point, from 5.70 to 6.04

Notably, those individuals who are shopping for homes had more to choose from in early 2005, as single-family listings averaged 38,871, a 6.6 percent increase over the quarterly average of 36,459 detached homes and condos for sale twelve months ago.

At the current sales pace, this represents 9.1 months of supply, a drop from the 9.7 months of supply that was available in the first quarter of 2004, but this figure is up from the 6.3 months of supply in the prior quarter.

Unfortunately for buyers, even though inventory levels are at a healthy level, the MAR report found that housing prices continued to rise steadily across the state, with new record highs in the first quarter of 2005.

In the detached single-family home market, the statewide median selling price increased 11.9 percent over the past 12 months from $310,00 in the first quarter of 2004 to $346,800 in the same three-month period of 2005. In addition, over the past year, the statewide median selling price for condos rose 14.5 percent, from $232,000 in early 2004 to $265,650 in early 2005.

After several years, inventory levels are finally beginning to build, however, this development prompted a note of caution from MAR's president.

"With more properties coming onto the market, sellers need to be realistic in their pricing. If you over-estimate the value of your home, you may be limiting the pool of buyers who can afford it, making it much more difficult to sell," Tomkiewicz concluded.
